Plane Crash Fatal

ALBERNI—A Vancouver man presumably died Thursday in the spiralling crash of his light plane into an arm of Sproat Lake, about 15 miles from here.

Wreckage of a small plane, found Friday, has been identified as that of a Mooney aircraft which, piloted by Richard Hansen, 30, Vancouver, took off from the mainland city Thursday afternoon.

The debris was first spotted by an RCAF Search and Rescue helicopter, and positive identification made by a ground party guided to the location by the copter.

Mr. Hansen, an electrical contractor, took off Thursday at 2:45 p.m. on a flight to Bella Coola and Prince Rupert.

He was reported as missing, and is believed to have been driven off course by Thursday's bad weather in the area.

SPILLING DOWN

People living near Sproat Lake reported Thursday seeing a plane spiralling down and vanishing, its motor screaming, behind a mountain at about 4 p.m.

Search by air and land that day failed to bring results, and were resumed Friday, still in bad weather with intermittent snow.

Casket Firm Razed

A raging blaze all but destroyed an old Sidney land-mark late last night.

It is a 25 ft. flames licked through the old Sidney theatre, now converted in the Van-Isle Casket Co., 9781 Fourth Street.

Sidney volunteer fire chief G. A. Gardner said damage would run to "many thousands of dollars," but declined to give an official estimate until inventory could be taken.

IN BUILDING

Material for nearly 1,000 caskets was destroyed by the searing heat and flames. A substantial number of completed caskets was reduced to ashes in the blaze which was kept in the building by firemen's efforts.

Chief Gardner said some expensive machinery used in manufacturing of caskets was salvageable.

IN EAST END

The fire appeared to have broken out in the east end of the building, then spread to the cooling. Some flames licked through onto the roof but were quickly snuffed out.

The property was believed to be partly insured.

Ban-Bombers Buffet Mac's Car

CP from Reuters AP BROMLEY, England—Shogun shouting anti-nuclear demonstrators Friday night rocked and buffeted the car containing Prime Minister Macmillan and his wife after he defended Britain's nuclear deterrent in a speech here.

Macmillan told a Conservative party rally in this southern England town it would be wrong for Britain or Europe to rely solely on the U.S. nuclear deterrent.

Extra police were rushed to the scene when 150 ban-the-bomb supporters gathered outside the hall, waiting for the prime minister to leave.

Warheads Make Canada Decoy Says John D

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Friday night the Liberal party proposed policy of arming Canada's Bomarc missiles with nuclear warheads will make Canada a decoy for attack.

He told a boisterous meeting at Kingston Arena that United States Defence Secretary McNamara had dropped the bottom out of the Liberal election campaign.

"The Pearson policy is to make Canada a decoy for the intercontinental missiles," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

"Bottom fell out" of the Liberal program today with the McNamara revelation.

(From CP)

WASHINGTON—Views of U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara on the efficiency of the Bomarc anti-aircraft weapon burst like a bombshell on the Canadian election scene Friday.

The statements were contained in a transcript of testimony given earlier by McNamara to a closed-door congressional investigating group.

He said one of the uses of the Bomarc is to draw enemy ballistic missile fire in the event of war.

ONLY $20,000,000

He said he would remove the Bomarc altogether but for the fact the annual maintenance costs are no more than $20,000,000 and "I think we are getting our money's worth."

At the very least, he said, the Bomarc would cause the Soviets to target missiles against them and thereby increase their missile requirements or draw missiles onto these Bomarc targets that would otherwise be available for other targets.

TWO AREAS

He referred to the lack of adequate dispersal as one problem affecting U.S. Bomarc. These squadrons are located in the northeastern and central parts of the country.

Hecklers Laid Low

16,000 Hear Douglas

By BEN WARD

TORONTO (CP)—New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas drew nearly 16,000 persons into Maple Leaf Gardens Friday night and told them it's time Canada elected a government which knows where it is going and how it is going to get there.

Obviously hooked by the here and enthusiastic crowd, the NDP leader cut loose with a scathing attack on the Liberal election themes, derided the Diefenbaker government for what he called procrastination and indecision, and laid low a scattering of hecklers.

CLOSE DOORS

A Gardens spokesman said turnstile attendants clocked 15,812 admissions on their automatic counters. Firemen finally ordered the doors closed because of fire regulations which had been relaxed somewhat to allow for 1,250 extra chairs on the hard-wooded ice surface of the big hockey rink.

Mr. Douglas had one almost serious brush with a young heckler who leaped onto the platform just after Mr. Douglas had been introduced and was waiting for the applause to subside.

The well-dressed young man Bomarc has.

Strike-Up The Ban

Liberal leader Lester Pearson was expressionless last night as he and Mrs. Pearson arrived at the Royal Theatre to find they had to cross a "Ban the Bomb" picket line of some 30 people carrying signs and nuclear disarmament emblems. An aide helped clear a path for them into the theatre. (Bud Kusmen.)

$4,000 in Payroll Cheques 'Sent to Gagliardi's Home'

Project 1023 Named As 'Get Well Job'

A controversial highway project alleged to have been awarded to a firm as a "get well job" to cover previous losses was identified in a Colonist news story Friday as Project 819. The story stated highways department comptroller A. E. Rhodes had testified Project 819 cost double the estimate. What he said was that Project 1023 cost double the estimate.

The testimony came from Fred S. Bell, accountant for a group of companies involved in highway Project 819. He said orders to put the two men on the payroll came from Ericson Lyndhurst, president of L. & M. Logging Ltd., the prime contractor.

But he testified he never saw the men at work on the 12-mile highway project.

Mr. Lyndhurst was described earlier by star witness Dick Holzworth as a man paid $1,000 a month "for going to Gagliardi and keeping the door closed."

Mr. Bell told the afternoon session of the probe Mr. Lyndhurst's job "seemed to be to take care of negotiations with the department."

Earlier he had said "basically his role was to find other work and investigate other prospects for the company."

MEN NAMED

He identified the two men whose cheques were sent to the minister's home as Dominick Donatelli and Larry Jontz.

COUNSEL QUERY

Were they ever physically employed on Project 819? asked committee counsel Lloyd McKenzie.

"Not to my knowledge," the witness answered.

Asked if he knew the men never worked on the project, he replied, "I never saw them on the job."

Was it reasonable he might not have seen them if they worked there?

'John's Rug Not Ours'

By TED SHACKLEFORD

The nuclear issue took the spotlight last night as Liberal leader Lester Pearson spoke to an overflow meeting of more than 2,200 people in two Victoria theatres.

"Having spent $700,000,000 of your money and my money on the purchase of this equipment, the prime minister says the Bomarc missile which he acquired is no good. How absurd can you get?" he asked.

TO TWO CROWDS

Mr. Pearson was speaking to 1,150 people in the Royal Theatre with his speech piped in to another 750 in the Plaza Theatre.

Outside the Royal Theatre about 30 men and women picketed with signs against Canada accepting nuclear arms. Mr. and Mrs. Pearson walked through the pickets to enter the theatre.

Moderate heckling was ignored by Mr. Pearson as he spoke. When a heckler shouted Mr. Pearson raised his voice and shouted out the interruption.

NO QUESTION PERIOD

No question period was allowed after Mr. Pearson had finished his speech. He left the Royal Theatre and spoke briefly to this audience in the Plaza Theatre before returning to the Empress Hotel.

"He (Diefenbaker) wiped aside our objections in the House of Commons and boasted he was going to scrap the Avro Arrow and replace it with the Bomarc."

Hydro Rates Chopped

Reductions in electric (and on the mainland, gas) rates to save customers' just under $3,700,000 a year were announced today by Dr. G. M. Shuman and Dr. Hugh Koenig, co-chairmen of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

Commercial users of electricity will benefit most by the new reduction, the hydro statement said, with an annual saving of $2,800,000.

Residential electric customers will get a saving of $1,500,000.

ANNIVERSARY

Announcement of details of the lower rates, the statement said, followed Premier Bennett's "recent statement that reductions would be introduced on the first anniversary of the merger of the former B.C. Electric and B.C. Power Commission."

The new rates will be effective on the first full month billing after April 1.

The statement went on: "The co-chairmen said the new reduction, combined with the $5,500,000 reduction announced in March last year, would pass on to Hydro customers $11,500,000 and would bolster provincial economy by this added amount of consumer spending in British Columbia."

RESIDENTIAL LAST YEAR

"While commercial customers obtain the largest share of these reductions, Hydro spokesmen pointed to the fact that last year's reductions went entirely to residential consumers."

The statement said the saving to residential consumers would result from the first 100 kilowatt hours of consumption being reduced from 3.5 cents to 3.2 cents.

Cheques Sent, Probe Told

"No, I don't think it would be," the accountant replied.

The men's cheques were made up on the basis of time sheets submitted by a foreman. "They were sent to 152 St. Paul Street," he told the hearing.

"Where was that?" asked Mr. McKenzie.

"Mr. Gagliardi's residence in Kamloops."

Later he said the correct address was 156 St. Paul Street.

ANTHONY GAGLIARDI

He said the cheques may have been addressed to Anthony Gagliardi, the foreman, who was staying at the minister's home. He did not say what job Anthony Gagliardi was foreman of.

"I don't recall having addressed any envelopes to Mr. Philip Gagliardi," he said.

Earlier he testified the contractor on Project 819 paid several cheques of about $2,000 each to Vincent L. Gresty for equipment rentals.

TWO TASKS

He described Mr. Gresty as a principal in a construction company while he was simultaneously a mechanical superintendent for the highways department.

Asked if he knew of any payments made to Florence Gresty, he replied there was a "summed amount" for travel expenses. He said the books showed one item of $600, Dec. 22, 1957, signed by Mr. Lymburner.

Later he was asked if he was present at a meeting in a farmhouse construction office on Project 819 at which various principals of the contractors were present.

ORGANIST NAMED

Mr. McKenzie said the meeting he referred to was the one at which Mr. Holworth stated in his affidavit there was mention of a $350-a-month payment from Mr. Lymburner to Mr. Gagliardi's organist.

The affidavit identified the organist as Mrs. Florence Gresty.

Mr. Bell agreed he had been at the meeting and he knew Mrs. Gresty.

"Is she an organist?" Mr. McKenzie asked.

NEVER SEEN

"I've certainly never seen her play," he replied.

He said he thought there had been an organ in the Gresty home sometime in 1958 but he didn't think anyone in the family played it.

"Did you hear anything at that particular meeting?" counsel asked.

"There were a lot of things discussed. There was something, but it was not to do with an organist."

CUT OFF THERE

It seems to be Mr. Lymburner perhaps stated he was "cutting off" the money.

But before he could finish the sentence he was cut off for giving hearsay evidence.

Mr. McKenzie agreed the testimony should come from Mr. Lymburner.

The accountant closed his first day of testimony with the statement he knew of no wrongdoing by Mr. Gagliardi.

PAYMENT TO FIRM

He also said a $64 entry in the contractors' books against the name of resident highways engineer E. H. Barclay did not represent a payment to the engineer.

Instead, he said, it was a payment to the firm from Mr. Barclay.

At the conclusion of the session Waldo Skilling (SC-Victoria) said: "As far as I'm concerned I'm satisfied there has been no misuse of public funds."

NEXT MONDAY

Mr. Bell is scheduled to take the stand at the investigation's next sitting at 9:30 a.m. Monday.

At yesterday morning's session the committee probing the Holworth allegations voted to call in the RCMP in an effort to locate Mr. Lymburner.

But the order was revoked a short time later when Mr. McKenzie finally located the missing witness in California.

WEEKEND DECISION

He told the committee Mr. Lymburner had told him he was not a free agent to make a decision to come to Victoria to testify, but would consult his business associates and inform committee counsel of his decision at the weekend.

Mr. Lymburner is outside the committee's jurisdiction and can't be compelled to appear.

Bombshell by McNamara

Tied in with them and the Bomarc system applied only to those in the U.S. and not those in Canada.

The department said the Canadian Bomarc squadrons "in fact, are well dispersed and equipped with nuclear warheads."

Canadian SAGE control well protected and Bomarc into kill positions.

STATEMENT ISSUED

After release of the testimony and the air it caused among election campaigners, the U.S. defence department issued a statement that McNamara's reference to deficiencies in the Canadian Bomarc squadrons "in fact, are well dispersed and equipped with nuclear warheads."

UNDERGROUND

The 22 U.S. SAGE centres are above ground. The one in Canada at North Bay is underground.

The state department and White House declined comment on McNamara's testimony. Several U.S. air force officials expressed concern over the possible impact of his statements on the Canadian campaign and the U.S. air force position that equipping the two Canadian Bomarc squadrons with nuclear warheads is essential for North American defence.

SEVERAL YEARS

The defence department's statement also said McNamara stated in testimony the U.S. plans to retain the Bomarc in service for several years or at least as far ahead as can be seen.

"The secretary of defence's testimony also made clear his belief that the bomber threat will exist for the foreseeable future. The U.S. has eight Bomarc squadrons versus two in Canada.

ONE PROBLEM

The secretary of defence referred to lack of adequate dispersion as one problem affecting the Bomarc in the U.S. Canadian Bomarc, in fact, are well dispersed and Canadian SAGE control well protected.

"All effective elements of the defensive system in North America are, of course, potential targets for enemy action, as are U.S. installations having nuclear striking power designed to deter possible enemy attack. The U.S. itself naturally has considerably more such elements and installations than Canada."

Mr. Diefenbaker quoted Mr. McNamara as saying the Bomarc, because of the capital in investment already made, was hardly worth scrapping.

Mr. Diefenbaker quoted Mr. McNamara as saying the Bomarc, because of the capital in investment already made, was hardly worth scrapping.

"Yet the Liberal party would have us put nuclear warheads on something that is hardly worth having," he said.

"What they are for is to attract the fire of ICBMs. The purpose is to draw the attack."

The students started a chant of "Harkness, Harkness."

"We are talking about the most serious thing confronting Canadians today, and these people hood," Mr. Diefenbaker said. "Nero fiddled while Rome burned."

SUPPORTS STAND

"Never have I been reviled like this and today I am able to stand to the right of the platform and created a port of the position the Conservative party has taken," he said.

Clarification Needed

LIBERAL leader Lester Pearson has dismissed as Conservative propaganda reports now circulating in Eastern Canada which claim that he told a gathering of newspapermen recently that he would seek a coalition with the Conservative Party if the April 8 election resulted in another minority government.

Despite his flat denial something more of an explanation regarding the matter is required of Mr. Pearson at this time.

His retort that "These reports appear to be a last-ditch move to confuse the electorate and thereby save the Conservative party from defeat," for instance, hardly holds water, inasmuch as they first appeared in, or were referred to, during the past week by three major newspapers in the East—each of which has been recently hailed by the Grits as either a major supporter of the Liberal Party or a major detractor of the prime minister during the current election campaign.

The news item in question first appeared in the Toronto Telegram Monday. On Tuesday the Toronto Globe and Mail reported that Mr. Pearson refused to deny or confirm the story but did say that some of his ideas might have been misunderstood. And on Thursday the Montreal Gazette report was carried by the Canadian Press throughout Canada.

If Mr. Pearson sees some deep Tory plot in this he must indeed have considerably more imagination than he has hitherto displayed on the hustings.

Why did Mr. Pearson wait until now to flatly deny the truth of the report? Why did he neither confirm or deny it when he was contacted by the Globe and Mail on Monday? Why did he just state that some of his ideas must have been misunderstood when questioned earlier?

These are the points Mr. Pearson should clarify now. It should be no great task for him to do this. Some simple and logical explanation is all that is necessary to clear the air.

No Commitment

THE WORDS of one of Canada's most highly respected elder statesmen and a former leader of the CCF Party, Mr. M. J. Coldwell, should be noted well by the Canadian electorate.

Now chairman of the board of directors for the Canadian Committee for Nuclear Disarmament, Mr. Coldwell said Thursday that "there is not a shred of evidence" to support the contention that Canada is committed to accepting nuclear warheads.

In a statement reflecting his non-political committee's views on current national affairs he said that his organization believes that the issue of nuclear arms for Canada has become a prime one in the federal election.

The report concludes that those advocating the acceptance of nuclear warheads by Canada "have failed to provide any proof of a nuclear commitment on our part."

His words give strong and inviolable non-partisan support to the prime minister's declaration that the Conservative government has never at any time agreed to any nuclear involvement on behalf of Canada.

They also utterly repudiate Liberal Party charges that this is not so and that Mr. Diefenbaker is simply attempting to hoodwink the public in the matter.

Strange Distinction

WHETHER OR NOT one is in favor of games of chance as a method of raising money for charitable objects, the law on this subject as interpreted by the attorney-general's department and enforced by local police must be seen as leaving much to be desired.

A case in point is the newly-imposed ruling in Victoria that a limit of 25 bingo games a year applies not to organizations, but to halls; that if the Britannia Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion wants to hold that number of games annually in its premises, an old-age pensioners' group and two other Legion branches which have been using the large Britannia hall must stage their games, if any, elsewhere. This threatens to deprive these three organizations of the chance to present bingo on a worth-while scale for lack of adequate space.

The attorney-general and the police departments are entitled to sympathy in the difficult job of drawing dividing lines between what is supposed to be legally and morally acceptable or unacceptable in this popular pastime. To say that holding 25 games a year is legitimate but holding 26 games is keeping a common gaming house is patently nonsensical, yet while the pertinent law is on the books some distinctions must be made.

That, however, does not tend to maintain respect for the law and its administrators and enforcers, particularly when in the present instance the application of the ruling to halls rather than sponsors will appear to the generality of citizens as pettifoggery gone daft. For if the three organizations now deprived of the use of the Britannia hall for bingo should despite difficulties be successful in finding suitable alternative accommodation, the regulation will have accomplished nothing but to put them to trouble and expense, meanwhile merely diverting enthusiasts to games sponsored by other groups.

No Fooling

COMMISSIONER Gordon Carter would have the police department utilize radio broadcasts to warn motorists that radar units were out in various areas of the city trying to catch speeders. His theory is that this would be an effective way of taking the pressure off accelerators.

So it might—in the particular areas where the radar cars were said to be operating. The tendency elsewhere would be to consider the coast clear.

But even on this limited scale, the warning system could not be expected to have the desired results for long unless backed up with action. And for lack of a noticeable increase in the apprehension of speeders, the common understanding already must be that the city police radar equipment is intended as a deterrent rather than as an improved means of catching violators.

A far better deterrent surely would be stricter enforcement—and no fooling.

"Since they've cut his subsidies economy's gone to his head."

Commonwealth Commentary

Strength in Links Among People

By ROB MANSFIELD

THE other day I was looking at three news items in a leading Commonwealth journal. The first said that the Federation of Commonwealth and British Chambers of Commerce at its annual meeting had elected its first Canadian president—Major General A. E. Walford, chairman of Canadian Veterans.

The second item recorded the fact that Mr. D. K. Daniels, secretary-general of the Royal Commonwealth Society of London, had returned from a 10-week tour of Commonwealth countries.

The third dealt with the party of M.C.C. cricketers, and revealed that Fred Trueman, the famous fast bowler, would be going on to New Zealand after all, when the English team finished their Australian tour.

Three news stories— and three men. It brought to mind the fact that, come what may, the Commonwealth finds one of its most enduring strengths in the links between people in every sort of human activity. Now many of these people are ministers or officials. But what I want to emphasize here is that vast and varied sector of Commonwealth co-operation which is effected by non-official people. It is of the first importance, on the principle that voluntary effort springs from real conviction.

Take the case of the Federation of Commonwealth and British Chambers of Commerce. This organization not only promotes co-operation and understanding between the business men of the Commonwealth, but it succeeds in analyzing problems of major concern and bringing to the notice of governments its views on these vital issues of the day. At the last annual meeting, particular attention was drawn to the needs of the developing countries, and the more advanced countries were exhorted to give all the aid they could as one way of maintaining Commonwealth partnership.

Another body which conducts similar activities is the Commonwealth Industries Association, which wages a particularly stout campaign on behalf of inter-Commonwealth trade. Covering particular areas are the West African Committee and the West Indian Committee.

But let us now take a look at those admirable people who devote their efforts to the cause of the afflicted. There is, for a start, the Royal Commonwealth Society for the Blind.

It has not only alleviated the plight of many people—it has assisted in establishing some 50 schools and centres—but has also consistently and effectively drawn public attention to the needs of the Commonwealth's sightless millions and co-operated with governments in the common fight.

More recently formed is the Commonwealth Society for the Deaf, which has similar aims. It has been particularly active in promoting the provision of hearing aids.

As a contrast, there is the co-operation in sport and in culture. Now both these are international, and it would be egregious folly to claim that the Commonwealth has a special brand of either. But it does perform two services. By the arts for example painting, music, the drama or literature—it does provide opportunities for the efforts of smaller and poorer countries, and of the people from those countries, to become known to a wider world.

I am thinking of such things as the Commonwealth Institute art exhibition, of the constant "one-man shows" in London, of the presentation of plays and musical shows and dance exhibitions, and of the award of literary prizes. To fund of common interest. A plan has recently been launched for mutual assistance between Commonwealth countries on law revision, which will be handled by the British Institute of International and Comparative Law.

In sport, once again the Commonwealth does not have a special brand of tennis or swimming although it finds a rich field of its own in rugby and cricket. But what it does, I claim, is to establish a strong element of comradeship in sport as witness the recent Commonwealth Games in Perth, Western Australia, which were as remarkable for sportsmanship and fellowship as for the records established.

Turn from leisure to the serious business of earning a living, and there you find many of the Commonwealth finds one of its most enduring strengths in the links between people in every sort of human activity. Now many of these people are ministers or officials. But what I want to emphasize here is that vast and varied sector of Commonwealth co-operation which is effected by non-official people. It is of the first importance, on the principle that voluntary effort springs from real conviction.

At the beginning of this article I mentioned the Royal Commonwealth Society, which can be said to carry an understanding of, and a faith in, the Commonwealth through its world-wide membership. So, too, do the Royal Overseas League and the Victoria League for Commonwealth Fellow ship. This significant type of group co-operation has many other facets. There are the Pakistan Society, the British Association of Malaya, the British Nigerian Association, the British Caribbean Association. All these societies depend on an enthusiastic membership of people who have a general faith in the Commonwealth and a particular link with one of its parts.

There are scores more of these non-governmental societies and organizations. But I will mention but one more, one of the more recently formed, for it seems to be to symbolize the spirit behind them all. This is the Voluntary Service Overseas. Its aim, quite simply, is to "provide temporary auxiliaries to help with hard-pressed projects of social service in less-developed countries and at the same time, to give selected young people from Britain the opportunity of working alongside local people under challenging conditions overseas."

Reflecting on all these things I am reminded of the powerful and illuminating article recently produced by Mr. Duncan Sandys, as secretary of state for Commonwealth relations. In it he said:

"Important as are (these) manifold official relations, we must always remember that the Commonwealth is not just an association of governments. It is an association of peoples, between whom there are countless connections which need to be continuously refreshed and strengthened."

Undergraduate Education

Preparation for University

By R. B. BOURDILON
(Ninth of Eight Articles.)

FORTY per cent of the freshmen entering UBC drop out before the end of their first year—with consequent waste of money, and lasting injury to themselves. Since "The Principle of Least Action" is as effective in scholastic circles as it is in dynamics, it is natural for the universities to describe these unfortunate as "not university material," and for the schools to ascribe their failure to poor university teaching. But, wherever the main fault may lie, it is clear that the preparation of these freshmen has been inadequate for the conditions they meet and therefore that improvements in school training deserve consideration.

Too Much Teaching Means Teaching from Research. For success as undergraduates, students must know how to learn from books, and must have the persistence needed for long hours of independent study. Many students leave school with little practice in these skills. Yet, as Dean Scarfe has emphasized, the chief part in education must be played by the pupils rather than the teachers. A similar comment on English schools, from Prof. Dobson, runs:

"One of the most stubborn school traditions, which unfortunately affects most pupils under 16, is that they are subjected to teaching, during all or nearly all of the school periods." He continues: "There must be, in every school, a library building sufficiently large to accommodate at least one-fifth of the school, so that every pupil can escape from the nervous strain of chalk and talk and, instead, learn for himself during at least one hour of quiet per day."

Such a provision of space might cause an extra capital cost, but a saving in teachers' B.C., out of the 85 credits required in nonselective courses of the general program for school graduation, only five are allotted to science. This assignment is so small that it suggests education for past times rather than for the future.

Objective Examinations and Composition. The common complaint that university entrance cannot write or think clearly, seems partly due to examinations which test the memorization of facts, but not their orderly presentation.

The difficulty is not easily cured. As Prof. Watson Thomson reported to UBC: "The student has, at least in Canada, been regularly exposed to instruction in grammar and composition in our public schools, for years before he comes to university, and the evidence suggests that he is not cured. As Prof. Watson Thomson reported to UBC: "The student has, at least in Canada, been regularly exposed to instruction in grammar and composition in our public schools, for years before he comes to university, and the evidence suggests that he is not cured. Something Rotten In Zurich Police ZURICH (UPI)—Police are hunting for the thief who stole $20,380 from a safe located in police headquarters here.

"It must have been an inside job," said an official.

Missing Fliers Hijacked?

CHICAGO (CPAP)—A lawyer says he believes his son and a missing Canadian were aboard a converted bomber that may have been hijacked and crashed in South America several months ago.

Last Sunday two Canadian missionaries found the wreckage and three bodies on a mountain near Colombia's Atlantic coast.

William Patterson, Sr., said one of the victims apparently was his son William, Jr., 29, a missing charter pilot from Wilmington, Del. The Canadian apparently was John Carson Lee of Ottawa.

He believes the plane might have been commandeered. "The records show there were only two persons in that plane when it took off."

MOSCOW—Lavestia said the charges were false against old Bolshevik union leader Solomon Lazovsky, shot in 1952 for an alleged plot against Stalin's life.

May I make a plea for those friends of the fruit growers, the honey bees?

With the coming of our current mild weather many amateur gardeners have seized the opportunity to get in their first ticks at their insect pests. Unfortunately, some of the pesticides are used with more enthusiasm than discretion, with the result that a great many bees never return to their homes after a visit to the blooms. This means, at this time, that the growth of the hives, owing to a diminution of food, does not build up quickly enough to be ready for the pollination of the major fruit bloom which will soon be upon us, with a consequent reduction of crops. All that is desired of the gardener is a little care to spray no trees, shrubs or plants in bloom; preferably use a spray of heavy drops which will not spill over on to adjoining plants in bloom, and if a finely-atomized spray must be used choose a windless day for the job. Finely atomized sprays have been known to seriously affect plants several hundred yards distant.

A View from Abroad

The committee of the Dunedin Branch of the New Zealand Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament has instructed me to write to you that they hope that whatever may be the result of the coming election the Canadian government will not accept nuclear weapons from any country nor make any for themselves. We believe that these would be deplorable steps because they would promote the spread of nuclear weapons among the nations whereas we hope to see them eliminated. Furthermore they would make it difficult for Canada to co-operate with smaller countries like New Zealand, which lack nuclear weapons, in raising a collective objection to this race's progress upon which the great powers have embarked.

The spread of nuclear weapons to such new countries will make this spread to other nations more likely, will make their abolition more difficult and also will widen the target area involved in a nuclear war.

We assure you that the beliefs set out above are held by very many people in New Zealand, who are distressed by this step which a sister Dominion is contemplating.

Violent Red Attack on U.S. Sharpest in Geneva's Year since the 17-nation disarmament conference convened more than a year ago.

Soviet delegate Semyon Tsarapkin turned the conference into a forum for attacking alleged U.S. help to anti-Castro Cuban exile raiders and for charging the West is "sharpening the threat of war" in Europe.

Tsarapkin made no mention of the proposal of U.S. ambassador Charles Steele to negotiate the "hot line," a telephone or teletype connection between the White House and the Kremlin that might reduce the risk of war by accident.

The proposal first was made by the U.S. last year and both Premier Khrushchev and President Kennedy have expressed interest in it.

Soviet negotiators never have discussed it at the conference table.

Tsarapkin charged the U.S. is "openly arming counter-revolutionaries who are conducting forays against Cuba from territory under U.S. protection."

He said recent moves for strengthening NATO's nuclear capability threaten the peace in Europe because "the button which can trigger off a nuclear war is the point of attraction to many eager fingers."

Tsarapkin called for discussion of the Soviet plan for a non-aggression pact between NATO and the Warsaw Pact.

Britain's Joseph Godber called this unrealistic.

One 'Fiend' Jailed

Sisters Watched Woman Die

LILLE, France (UPI)—One of the "fiends of Tourenne" is going to jail because she and her sister failed to stop her husband's mistress from committing suicide.

The "fiends" are two French women, Mrs. Louise Baronne and Marie Nifle. They acquired their nickname during their trial because the crime with which they were charged took place at Tourenne, an industrial suburb of Lille.

The prosecution charged the sisters remained in an adjoining room while Odile Drouot, the mistress of Mrs. Baronne's husband, took poison and died slowly.

Police contended they slipped into the room from time to time to look at the dying girl, but never made any attempt to save her.

The sisters were charged under the section of the French penal code which makes it an offence not to aid a person in mortal danger.

The court found both sisters guilty Thursday. In the case of Marie Nifle, the court ruled extenuating circumstances and let her off with a one-year suspended jail sentence. Mrs. Baronne received a two-year sentence.

"She rejected every elementary feeling of humanity," the court said in sentencing Mrs. Baronne. "She wanted above all to see Odile die, Odile who was her rival and whose death could bring a hardly-hoped-for solution to the problem in her home."

The sisters also were ordered to pay various sums of money to Odile's parents and other relatives.

Bomarc Maintenance

$1,000,000 Annually

OTTAWA (UPI)—The two ground-to-air missiles in Canadian Bomarc anti-aircraft fleet.

Testimony at Washington by U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara, made public Friday, says that one of the functions of the Bomarc base is to draw enemy ballistic missile fire in the event of war but that the Bomarc turned out to be an expensive weapon for although the actual number of this purpose.

Each base has 28 launchers to be an expensive weapon for although the actual number of this purpose.

Writers for Colonist Win Newspaper Awards

Newspapermen whose award-winning work was featured in The Daily Colonist are among the winners of the 14th annual National News Paper Awards for 1962.

Peter Worthington of the Telegram News Service won the award for feature writing with a series about a Canadian woman doctor in the hinterlands of Iran. The series was published in the Colonist last fall.

Special Citation

Ken MacTaggart of the same news service was awarded a special citation for a story last March, also carried in the Colonist, on the first recorded birth of a thalidomide baby in Canada.

Other awards:

Editorial writing—Andre Laurendeau, Montreal Le Devoir; spot news reporting—Tom Hazlett, Vancouver Province; staff correspondence—Michael Barkway, Southern News Services; spot news photography—Dan Scott, Vancouver Sun; feature photography—Boris Spremo, Toronto Globe and Mail; cartooning—Duncan Macpherson, Toronto Star; sports writing—Mike Crammond, Vancouver Province.

A citation in the editorial writing category was also awarded Jean Howarth of the Globe and Mail.

Five-part series

Mr. Worthington's five-part series featured Dr. Gloria Dorey Bakhar of Toronto, the Montreal market, Stirling said, and brought itself to the attention of sponsors with every gimmick it could think of.

"We even gave away a human being once," he said, adding the approach was dropped when the station was reorganized by sponsors.

Federation Dies

LONDON (Reuters) — The death knell sounded for the shaky federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland Friday as the white-dominated federation and the black-led Rhodesia-Nyasaland Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland came to an end. The federation was announced in 1962 when Britain had given the same right of secession from the federation already given to the black-led Rhodesia-Nyasaland. The third member of the federation is Southern Rhodesia.

In another development following the crucial conference on the 10-year-old federation's future, Southern Rhodesia declared it must have full independence if the federation is dissolved. Southern Rhodesia Premier Winston Field said: "The federation is at an end."

Welensky snubbed a luncheon invitation from Prime Minister Macmillan — an unprecedented action for a Commonwealth leader — and angrily told a press conference the British move is "an act of betrayal."

NO COOPERATION

He said the federation is not planning to resort to any unconstitutional measures, but said he would not co-operate with Britain unless Southern Rhodesia attained its independence.

Northern Rhodesia's Negro coalition government leaders, Kenneth Kaunda and Harry Nkumbula, were jubilant about the secession decision which was the outcome of talks begun eight days ago with Central African Affairs Minister R. A. Butler.

Canada Delay on Fishery Plan Regretted by Japanese Envoy

OTTAWA (CP) — Japan has expressed regret verbally but not in writing about delay in Canadian approval of a recommendation for Japanese halibut fishing in the east Bering Sea.

An external affairs spokesman said Friday that Japanese Ambassador Nobuhiko Ushiba expressed the regret in a visit Thursday afternoon.

His statement followed a report from Tokyo earlier Friday that Japan had protested formally any delay in Canadian approval of a recommendation in the North Pacific Fisheries Commission that Japan be allowed to fish halibut in the east Bering Sea.

This has been exclusive Canadian and United States fishing territory — the three countries are members of the commission.

Reds, Japan Moving In

KODIAK, Alaska (AP) — More than 150 Russian fishing vessels are operating in the frigid Bering Sea and some 70 Japanese halibut boats are in the East Bering area, a Seattle Times writer reported Friday.

Stanton H. Patty, on assignment with the United States halibut fleet, said he saw about 100 Russian vessels-whalers and modern super-trawlers with hoods of catcher boats.

To Hear Psychiatrist

Keynote speech at the John Howard Society combined annual meeting in Calgary April 26 and 27 will be given by Dr. J. S. Tyhurst of the University of British Columbia.

Dr. Tyhurst is a well-known psychiatrist and director of the department of psychiatry at UBC. His speech will be on youth in conflict.

Theme of the spring seminar will be youth in conflict with the law and will include panels which will discuss the treatment of the juvenile court, welfare and justice and detection as deterrence.

St. John Awards

Warrants of appointment were presented to Mrs. Elsie Humble, Edward O. Thomas and Miss Lillian Barker at the annual inspection of the Victoria branch of St. John Ambulance this week.

Twenty-year certificates for first and were presented to Mrs. Margaret Hall, Mrs. Agnes Smith and Mrs. Gladys Harwood. A 20-year certificate for home nursing was presented to Mrs. Margaret Hall during the ceremony.

Could Quebec Secede From Canada Legally?

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — Behind the controversy over the Quebec separatist movement lurks a weighty legal question.

Could Quebec secede from Canada by a legal democratic process and become a sovereign state?

IN SHORT, YES

The short answer is yes. But constitutional authorities say the obstacles appear insurmountable at the moment.

One major requirement is that the Canadian Parliament as well as the British Parliament would have to agree in its Constitutional experts were asked for their views on the secession issue because the legal aspects of the matter have been largely ignored in discussion of demands by Quebec ultra-nationalists for a separate state of Quebec.

LOOK BACK

The constitutional authorities say the question of whether Quebec could secede from Canada by a legal democratic process must be viewed in the light of the 19th-century events that led to Confederation.

Confederation in 1867 was preceded by agreements reached at the Quebec Conference of 1864 by representatives of Upper and Lower Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. These men—the Fathers of Confederation—approved 72 resolutions incorporating those things they believed a Canadian constitution should contain.

NO ACT OF UNION

The constitutional experts emphasize that the delegates at Quebec did nothing more than pass resolutions—that there was thus no act of union or any contract between English and French-speaking states.

They were representatives from British colonies and had no right to enter into any act of union or contract, the experts say. They couldn't do either because they didn't represent states.

BNA ACT BARS

Later the Quebec resolutions formed the basis for the British North America Act, a law enacted by the British Parliament.

This act is popularly held to be the Canadian constitution. In fact, the constitution includes other British laws, constitutional conventions, orders-in-council, the laws of the Canadian Parliament as well as provincial laws and decisions of the courts.

But the BNA Act constitutes that part of the constitution providing for a federal Parliament and the creation of provincial governments. Under it, no province may enter those fields reserved exclusively for the federal Parliament.

The areas in which the federal Parliament has exclusive jurisdiction include postal services, currency and coinage, defence, banking, criminal law, regulation of trade and commerce, navigation and responsibility for Indians.

NEED CHANGE IN ACT

Any province wishing to become a separate state would have to be given such powers. And the only way it could obtain them by a legal democratic process would be through an amendment to the BNA Act.

The only present method for obtaining such an amendment is by a joint resolution from Parliament—the House of Commons and the Senate—submitted to the British Parliament.

No province or group of provinces could do it.

If the federal Parliament approved such a reference, the British Parliament then would have to give its stamp of approval by amending the BNA Act, a British law.

The British Parliament has never rejected previous amendments to the BNA Act proposed by the Canadian Parliament, but the question of secession might be different, the experts say.

NEW ASSEMBLY

A province seeking the legal right to secede might organize a constituent assembly similar to the Quebec conference that preceded Confederation.

Even if such a constituent assembly were to approve secession and this were supported by other provinces, the federal Parliament still would have to ask the British Parliament to amend the BNA Act.

Berlin Boys Play Wall Game

BERLIN (UPI) — Three West Berlin boys, for the fun of it, crept through barbed wire on the Berlin border to the East. They were 9, 10 and 11.

Eastern police sent them back two hours later, West Berlin police said Friday.

The boys got through the barbed wire in a country district on the border of the British sector's Spandau section.

VANCOUVER — Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands will visit Vancouver May 4 and 5. He will attend ceremonies in Victory Square marking the liberation of Holland by Canadian troops May 5, 1945.

Busy Two Days Here For German Sailors

Officers and men of two German naval training frigates arriving in Victoria Monday face a busy schedule during their two-day visit.

The Graf Spee and Hipper are to dock in Esquimalt at 9 a.m.

Following a press conference, the commanding officers of both ships will pay official calls to Government House, Premier Bennett, the flag officer Pacific Coast, Mayor Wilson and Reeve Wurtele of Esquimalt, then attend a civic luncheon at the Union Club.

ROYAL ROAD STOP

A visit to Royal Road has been planned for the afternoon for all 120 naval cadets aboard both ships.

Football games are planned between teams from the services college and the visitors. Fifty of the cadets will attend a dance at the college Monday evening.

Other members of the ships' companies will tour a brewery and wine company Monday afternoon. Smokers are planned in the Chief Petty Officers' mess and Petty Officers' mess and the Fleet Club of HMCS Naden that evening.

A reception for the officers Monday evening. A tour of the Butchart Gardens for personnel of the ships will be sponsored by the city Tuesday morning. Another group will be taken on a sightseeing tour of the city.

A reception will be held aboard the visiting ships Tuesday evening. The ships will leave for Vancouver at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Hawks Might Tap Farms for Help

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago Black Hawks may call for player help from their farm clubs for Sunday's first Stanley Cup semi-final game against Detroit Red Wings here.

That was the word Friday from coach Rudy Plous, who says he was "a bit shocked" at news from the Hawks' sick bay in Chicago that indicated three regulars—left wingers Bobby Hull and Ron Murphy and defenseman Al MacNeil—may sit this one out.

Plous, who left Chicago early Friday, a few hours after the Hawks whipped the Red Wings 5-2 to take a two-game lead in their best-of-seven series, said in a telephone interview from Erie, Ont. he "didn't know a thing" about MacNeil's injury.

diagnosed as two broken ribs. He added: "We might have to go to Buffalo for help but I still have Bob Turner and Reg Fleming for defence duty."

Plous has used these utility men on forward lines since

Tonight's game between Toronto and Montreal will be televised on Channel 1 and 6 at 6 p.m. and broadcast on CTV at 8:30.

Hawks opened the series with a 5-4 decision Tuesday night. Hull suffered a fractured rim of an orbital bone adjacent to his nose and considerable damage to soft tissue in the nose Thursday night. His face was raked by the stick of Detroit's

Bruce MacGregor after take by Hull literally sent the Red Wing youngster spinning. Club physician Dr. Myron Tremaine said it is doubtful Hull can play Sunday, even with a protective face mask. He may see action in Tuesday's fourth game.

Murphy, who played last Tuesday night, missed Thursday night's game and may be out a week because of infection which developed on a cut ankle. The way the Hawks have handled the Red Wings in the two games so far doesn't indicate that they need much help from the farm. They won both their games in easy fashion, particularly Thursday night.

The Red Wings left Chicago Thursday and are staying at Toledo, Ohio. Coach Sid Abel reports they are healthy.

The Toronto Maple Leafs plan a disappearing act between the third and fourth games of their Stanley Cup semi-final against Montreal Canadiens.

Wary of over-zealous fans in Montreal, where the teams play tonight's third game of the best-of-seven series, Toronto manager-coach Punch Imlach said he'll keep clear of that city after the game.

WON'T NAME THEM "I don't know yet where I'm going," he said Friday before Leafs, leading the series 2-0, flew to Montreal. "I've got two places to go, but I'm not naming them."

"Frankly, I just don't want the players to be bothered. The visiting teams have a real easy time of it here compared to Montreal."

There was some speculation Leafs might return to Toronto to await the fourth game Tuesday night in Montreal, but this could not be confirmed. After Thursday night's second game, which Toronto won 3-2, Imlach said his between-games residence "might be Granby or Montreal or Tremblay or I don't know where."

WON'T DRESS Forward Johnny MacMillan, out of action for the last week and a half with an elbow injury, skated without equipment Friday, but Imlach said he won't likely dress tonight.

Coach Toe Blake still maintains his Canadiens are a better team than Toronto. "Everybody says they've got a much better team than we do," said Blake Friday. "But I don't see it. When I take two sheets of paper and write down all the players' names, I don't see how they're better than we are in any department—goalkeeping, defence or whatever."

Blake says the series is "far from over."

"Our spirit is good. If we'd played another bad game like Tuesday, we'd be in bad shape. But now we know we can stay with them. We outskated them in the last two periods Thursday, and we could have beat them if it wasn't for that lucky goal."

The "lucky" goal was Leafs' winner in the 3-2 game, a slow-motion nudge by Leaf centre Dave Keon that beat Montreal goalie Jacques Plante.

Canadiens' only injury worry is left winger Gilles Tremblay, who took a solid jolt in the mouth Thursday night. But team physiotherapist Bill Head said Tremblay seems to have only stiff muscles in the jaw and cheeks and "most probably" will play tonight.

The 18-year-old Barlowen, seeded third, held his service skillfully through both games and controlled most rallies on his way to an 11-6, 11-6 victory. Beverly Chittick of Windsor, Ont., the second seed in junior women's singles, who recently performed brilliantly to take a "cross-court backhand drop" that is practised in British Columbia, but apparently unknown in Ontario. The 18-year-old Vancouver Island beauty won 11-6, 11-5.

In the other half of the draw Winnipeg's Anne McDiarmid continued in her king-beating role by defeating third-seeded Eleanor O'Gorman of Winnipeg 3-11, 11-7, 12-10.

The matches thus set up a final today between Miss McDiarmid, an unranked 15-year-old, and Miss Daysmith, the seventh seed.

The muscular Paterson opened his semi-final match poorly against John McAuley of Regina, smashing into the net and missing sidelines, but recovered to win 15-10, 15-1. Paterson and Barlowen will meet today for the junior title.

The East, however, kept a life in the junior doubles as Miss Chittick and Sue Carr-Harris of Oakville, Ont. defeated top seeds Judy Humber and Miss Daysmith 15-13, 15-9. Entering the finals against them were Miss O'Gorman and Miss McDiarmid, who defeated Diane Goffrey and Wendy Williams of Victoria 18-17, 15-3.

And in junior men's doubles, the second-seeded Toronto twins Gordon and Graham Grant edged out an 8-15, 15-2, 18-16 victory over Howie Meakin and Al Fraser of Vancouver to enter the finals.

They will play Paterson and Barlowen, who were 15-10, 15-10 semi-final winners over Regina's Geoff Holland and McAuley.

The world's two top-ranking badminton players scored decisive victories Friday night to set up a meeting for the men's open singles title.

Erland Kops of Denmark, rarely making a mistake in his touch at the nets, whipped Thailand's Sangob Rattanasorn 15-9, 15-4.

In the other semi-final match, second-ranking Chanarong Rattana - Saeng - Suang of Thailand won points in his first game and led the way in his second to defeat American champion Jim Poole 15-11, 15-12.

Kops, who won the Canadian open title in his last tour of Canada two years ago meets Chanarong for the championship tonight.

POOLE AND CHANARONG drew the spotlight despite the presence of the world champion on the next court. The American from San Diego, Calif., outweighed his opponent 195 pounds to 123, but covered the floor as well, failing only when he was forced to leave the baselines.

In women's singles play, Marjorie Shedd stood off an assault by Dorothy Tinline to qualify for a chance at her sixth Canadian title. She defeated her Toronto clubmate 11-0, 11-12.

The other half of the draw brought an easier 11-5, 11-5 victory for second-seeded Mrs. Joan Miller of Montreal over Toronto's Sharon Whittaker, formerly of Victoria.

The East, however, kept a life in the junior doubles as Miss Chittick and Sue Carr-Harris of Oakville, Ont. defeated top seeds Judy Humber and Miss Daysmith 15-13, 15-9. Entering the finals against them were Miss O'Gorman and Miss McDiarmid, who defeated Diane Goffrey and Wendy Williams of Victoria 18-17, 15-3.

And in junior men's doubles, the second-seeded Toronto twins Gordon and Graham Grant edged out an 8-15, 15-2, 18-16 victory over Howie Meakin and Al Fraser of Vancouver to enter the finals.

They will play Paterson and Barlowen, who were 15-10, 15-10 semi-final winners over Regina's Geoff Holland and McAuley.

The world's two top-ranking badminton players scored decisive victories Friday night to set up a meeting for the men's open singles title.

Erland Kops of Denmark, rarely making a mistake in his touch at the nets, whipped Thailand's Sangob Rattanasorn 15-9, 15-4.

In the other semi-final match, second-ranking Chanarong Rattana - Saeng - Suang of Thailand won points in his first game and led the way in his second to defeat American champion Jim Poole 15-11, 15-12.

Kops, who won the Canadian open title in his last tour of Canada two years ago meets Chanarong for the championship tonight.

POOLE AND CHANARONG drew the spotlight despite the presence of the world champion on the next court. The American from San Diego, Calif., outweighed his opponent 195 pounds to 123, but covered the floor as well, failing only when he was forced to leave the baselines.

In women's singles play, Marjorie Shedd stood off an assault by Dorothy Tinline to qualify for a chance at her sixth Canadian title. She defeated her Toronto clubmate 11-0, 11-12.

The other half of the draw brought an easier 11-5, 11-5 victory for second-seeded Mrs. Joan Miller of Montreal over Toronto's Sharon Whittaker, formerly of Victoria.

Braves Win Game Once Called Off

PENTICTON (CP)—Penticton Royals blew a 13-point half-time lead and Victoria Haida Braves went on to win 70-61 in the first of the two-game total point series for the B.C. juvenile basketball championship.

Haidas now take a nine-point cushion into the second game Saturday night.

Victoria's big centre, Donny Morris was the key in the Braves win, hooping 25 and taking complete charge of the offensive backboard. He hit for 15 of his points in the second-half surge. Fiery Brave forward Perry Whitman hit the net for 12 points, and was the Haida playmaker all night.

The Friday night game was almost not played. Penticton officials had called the finals off, defaulting to the Victorians because of a lack of funds to guarantee the visitors travelling expenses.

But five of the Braves had already left for the interior, and a hurry up call reversed the match.

Ban-Bomb Picketers Sure Only About Issue

Some of the 30 ban-the-bomb picketers outside Liberal leader Lester Pearson's meeting in the Royal Theatre last night knew what the issue was, but weren't at all sure of what the emblems they were carrying meant.

They were carrying a variety of signs, together with a large sprinkling of sticks carrying the international symbol of nuclear disarmament.

NOT MEMBER

One elderly lady, asked what her emblem meant, replied: "I really don't know. I've been trying to find out."

She told a Colonist reporter she was not a member of an organization out was present as an individual.

An elderly gentleman carrying both a sign and the emblem was closer when he said the emblem was "the international 'no nuclear arms' sign."

TWO LETTERS

"It is a combination of two letters . . . I don't just know what they are. I wear the button."

He pulled his overcoat back to display a small enameled button on his lapel. He was wearing it upside down.

Among the demonstrators were Victoria fisherman Elgin Neish and Mrs. Evelyn Peaker, 998 McBride.

RECENT SPEAR

They recently sprayed "No Nuclear Arms" on a rock at the corner of Wilkinson Road and Trans-Canada Highway and more recently removed it at the request of Saanich police.

All sign and emblem carriers approached said they were making private protests. One woman told the Colonist: "I am representing peace. Down with wars!"

MANY HELPERS

Mrs. Peaker said that as a result of publicity arising from the message she sprayed on the Saanich rock many people had volunteered their services.

"I made 28 signs and everybody got one and I think there are a few here without signs," she said.

Word of some of the signs:

- Vote 'NO' to Nuclear Arms.
- Remember . . . There Is No Defence.
- Down With the Hell Bomb.
- No Murder Weapons for Canada.
- Stop U.S. Interference.
- Most elaborate sign showed a cartoon of Lester Pearson on his knees listening to the horn of an old Victrola in imitation of the famous His Master's Voice trademark.

The Victrola was labelled The Voice of America and His Master's Voice was written to the side of the drawing.

Scrawled at the bottom of the sign was "Obedient Mike." The emblem carried in ignorance by some of the demonstrators is a stylized combination of the semaphore signals for N — representing nuclear — and D — representing disarmament.

Right Second Time

Oak Bay Liberal MLA Alan Macfarlane returned gracefully at the Liberal rally in the Royal Theatre last night when he introduced his national leader by saying:

"I now give you the next prime minister of Canada, the Hon. Lester B. Pearson."

Within a minute he repeated the sentence, amending his leader's name to Lester B. Pearson.

Demonstrators Welcome Liberal Chief

Some 30 demonstrators—many of them elderly—picketed the Royal Theatre last night with "Ban the Bomb" signs before Liberal leader Lester Pearson arrived to give the final speech in a week-long election tour across Canada. Mr. Pearson walked through them to enter the theatre.—(Bud Kinsman photos)

Busy Fingers

Tending to her knitting during Lester Pearson's speech in the Royal Theatre last night was Mrs. J. W. Lott, 8727 Denecross Terrace. Her husband, alongside, kept his attention on Mr. Pearson's speech.

Big Toronto Rally Pearson Wind-Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal leader Pearson will wind up his federal election campaign next Friday by holding a public meeting at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto.

An itinerary issued Friday by Liberal party headquarters shows him beginning the final week of the campaign next Monday in Vancouver.

He will fly to Winnipeg Tuesday for a meeting at the Winnipeg Arena and he speaks in Montreal Wednesday.

On Thursday Mr. Pearson will fly to Sudbury, then spend the afternoon in his constituency of Algoma-East. In the evening he will address a rally in Sudbury.

Following his giant rally at Maple Leaf Gardens Friday the Liberal leader returns to Ottawa Saturday.

discussions . . . the Prime Minister did nothing.

"We should follow through and make it possible for that equipment to be used by accepting nuclear warheads for Bomarcet until the role of Canada is changed."

The only heckler recognized by Mr. Pearson rose then to shout "What about you in '61."

CARRY SHARE

Mr. Pearson said the Liberal party opposed acquisition of Bomarcet in 1961 but now felt Canada should carry out its share of the bargain by accepting the warheads.

"The other side of the foreign affairs is our relations with other countries. They have been made an issue in this campaign. In recent years we have not got on well with our mother country."

UNEQUALLED GENIUS

"The government in Ottawa somehow seems to have an unequalled genius for getting into trouble with our best friends."

Calling for a majority Liberal government, Mr. Pearson posed the question:

"What is the alternative to a strong, stable Liberal government?"

ANSWERS HIMSELF

"A coalition of Caouette and Diefenbaker? Government by the will of Real," he answered himself.

As Mr. Pearson was talking about the Liberal plan to introduce a portable contributory pension scheme for Canada one heckler was heard loud and clear.

NOT TO GRANDFATHER

"You aren't talking to my grandfather, you're talking to me," he said. Mr. Pearson ignored him.

Hecklers had more success with Equimault-Saanich candidate Robert Ostler who made a short speech before Mr. Pearson.

Victoria candidate David Groos used Mr. Pearson's technique of talking above the shouts.

Congolese Deaths

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (Reuters) — Seventeen civilians have been killed in fighting between townspeople and national troops in the lower Congo river, port of Boma, the Congolese news agency ACP reported.

Any Issue

"I would work untiringly for a solution to this unemployment problem for I know there must be a solution," said Mr. Isherwood.

Isherwood Issues Challenge to All

While Liberal leader Pearson held sway on the Victoria political scene last night, Victoria Independent Liberal candidate Foster Isherwood managed to draw 21 people to a meeting at the Burnside School.

Mr. Isherwood challenged all other Victoria candidates to an open debate on any issue they wish to discuss.

"I have sent registered letters to all my opponents, and am willing to discuss any subject any place and at any time," he said. "We can use any of the five halls I have booked for the week, or I will go to any other place they name."

"I especially challenge David Groos to a debate on nuclear weapons."

Speaking on unemployment, Mr. Isherwood called on all Canadians to unite and work with a will in order to find the solution to unemployment.

"The solution should not be put off," he said. "The problem should be faced squarely and firmly by whatever government is in power."

On hand to greet Lester Pearson when he arrived at Patricia Bay airport yesterday were the two Greater Victoria Liberal candidates, Robert

And Bouquet of Flowers

Island Greet's Pearson With Pipers, Cheers

Liberal leader Lester Pearson stepped onto Vancouver Island soil at Patricia Bay airport yesterday to be met by a small but enthusiastic gathering of supporters.

Grinning broadly, he acknowledged the cheers and greeted candidates David Groos of Victoria, Robert Ostler of Esquimalt-Saanich and Douglas Greer of Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands.

BOUQUET GIVEN

As Mrs. Pearson left the ramp of the four-engined aircraft pretty Karen Ostler, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ostler, presented her with a bouquet.

Pipers Gordon Hamilton, 530, Lotbiniere, and Billy Gugg, 1236 Pearce, played Green Hills as the Pearsons mingled with the crowd, meeting old friends.

MAYHEW THERE

On hand to meet them were George Gregory, Dr. F. T. Fairley, Ian Stewart, Alan Cox, former cabinet member R. W. Mayhew, Michael Griffin, David Hummel and others.

Among the others were a group of Victoria University students identified by an official as "members of the university Liberal Club."

Poverty, Jobs, Debt Social Credit Targets

It is to answer the problem of poverty, unemployment and debt that the Social Credit party is in the political field at this time, Equimault-Saanich Social Credit candidate Edward Lum, told 38 people at the Sooke Coffee Shop dining room last night.

"At present, money on the open market costs us four to five per cent, but the Bank of Canada can supply it at cost—about one-half of one per cent interest," said Mr. Lum.

"Our national debt now costs us twice as much to service than it did just after the Second World War," he said.

"It is wrong to have millions and millions of dollars of debt in Canada, completely beyond the capacity of our people and our governments ever to repay," said Mr. Lum.

He charged the banks and big financial monopolies are making profits at the expense of the Canadian people.

"Social Credit will ensure the Bank of Canada will, through the Parliament of Canada, issue and control the nation's money."

SUPPLY AT COST

"At present, money on the open market costs us four to five per cent, but the Bank of Canada can supply it at cost—about one-half of one per cent interest," said Mr. Lum.

"Our national debt now costs us twice as much to service than it did just after the Second World War," he said.

Charman Raps Groos

'He Has No Platform'

Victoria Conservative candidate Eric Charman yesterday told a gathering of 90 at a standing-room-only luncheon in the Blue Room on Broad Street that Liberal candidate David Groos "must be convinced that he has no place in politics here or anywhere else — He has no platform."

"I heard him on the radio this morning," he said. "The interviewer asked him what his policies would be if elected what he planned to do for Victoria."

"Mr. Groos actually replied,

"The problems here are no different from anywhere else in Canada. I'm merely a supporter of Mr. Pearson."

"Mr. Groos has been off the street too long if he can't see the many individual problems that need attention in the Victoria area," said Mr. Charman.

He took issue with one of the Liberal candidate's slogans: "Let's get Canada rolling — let's clean up the mess."

FINEST IN WORLD

"What mess?" thundered

Mr. Charman.

"If this is a mess, it's good for the country because while the Conservatives were in power between 1936-42 our national production record has been the best, the finest in the world."

"Here are the facts. In trade, Canada's sales to other countries were bettered by a full 9 per cent," he said.

BIGGER INCREASE

The U.S. increase in trade over a similar period was 31 per cent; Canada's increase was 229 per cent.

"On personal income, we did even better," he said. "Our increase in personal income was 7 per cent higher than the increase in the U.S."

"In industrial production, we had an increase one per cent better than the U.S."

Mr. Charman stated Mr. Groos had suddenly decided he didn't like hate campaigns.

HASNT WORKED

"Why? The Liberals embarked on a hate campaign against Mr. Diefenbaker which they carried on during the whole life of the government. Now they find it hasn't worked. They have merely endeavored people to the cause they tried to condemn. Now they don't like hate campaigns any more."

Mr. Charman said the Liberal candidate had said there was terrible unemployment in Canada.

MORE WORKING

Mr. Charman admitted there was some unemployment but stated there were more than 600,000 more people working in Canada since June, 1957.

"Ask the Liberals," he charged, "to name one piece of legislation they have wrangled through parliament to reduce unemployment in this nation."

"All they have done in the past year is to try to block every constructive move the Tories put forth."

Wolfe Pillar Broken

QUEBEC (CP)—Vandals Friday shattered the Wolfe Monument on the historic Plains of Abraham.

Leader of secessionist groups immediately termed it "an act of vandalism."

The 25-foot pillar marking the spot where Gen. James Wolfe died in battle in 1759 was supplied by rope tied around it and attached to a panel truck. Police said it was a well-planned job.

Although at least ten employees at the Quebec provincial jail witnessed the incident, RCMP and city police said they have few clues.

Albert Cote, night watchman at the jail, saw three men and two women near the statue. He told police a man clambered up the pedestal to attach the rope.

Cote informed Sgt. Maurice Boucher, officer in charge at the jail. Sgt. Boucher took a look and called police.

They arrived to find the monument shattered. The panel truck was found abandoned later.

Louis Robitaille, a reporter, said an anonymous caller Thursday night had told him to send a cameraman to the park Friday morning.

McNamara Explains Canadian Plane Ruling

WASHINGTON (CP)—Defense Secretary Robert McNamara says the state department had nothing to do with a U.S. army decision to share in the cost of developing the Canadian Caribou II transport plane.

He countered a charge by Rep. Daniel Flood, Pennsylvania Democrat.

Flood stated Feb. 13 there appears to have been a "deliberate conspiracy" in the Pentagon to order the Canadian plane when there were U.S. manufacturers available to turn out an adequate aircraft for the U.S. army.

Flood, member of a congressional committee investigating U.S. defense spending, said he suspects the state department helped persuade the Pentagon to order the plane, under development by de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd., Downsview, Ont.

McNamara said the U.S. army strongly recommended sharing in the development costs and the state department had nothing to do with that recommendation. Although the U.S. had acquired production rights, McNamara emphasized the Caribou II still is under design and no assembly-line production has been ordered.

Millions in U.S. Food, Drugs

First Help Reaches Bali

DEN PASAR, Bali (UPI)—Planes delivered 13 tons of surplus U.S. food Friday for stricken survivors of the eruption of Gunung Agung which speeded death and destruction of the volcano and Bali authorities over a wide area of this storied Indonesian island.

The first shipments of $1,300,000 worth of medical supplies pledged by the U.S. are expected today. U.S. ambassador Howard Jones was scheduled to fly here from Jakarta for a first-hand survey of the disaster and to co-ordinate U.S. relief efforts.

THOUSANDS MORE

At least 1,600 persons died in the eruption of the "sacred" volcano March 17 and thousands more were injured. Lava, volcanic mud and ash destroyed scores of villages and towns and spread over thousands of acres of farmland.

The volcano, which had been dormant for 120 years, still was belching clouds of ash-laden smoke and lava from the truncated peak, which was rated for its classic conic profile.

ABANDONED TOWNS

Rivers of glowing red lava crept down the northern slopes in the sea, where many Balinese were feared to have drowned when they fled in terror. Streams of hot mud flowed down the southern slopes through the ruins of scores of abandoned towns and villages. An estimated 75,000 persons were trapped by lava and mud in the Karangasem district north of Denpasar. Military officials needed local authorities were capable of handling the relief and rescue operations.

However, the war administration announced men from all four of Indonesia's armed forces are being mobilized for relief work.

CPR Earnings Slip $1,000,000

MONTREAL (CP)—The CPR has announced a decrease in net earnings of $1,282,834 during February compared with the same month last year.

Railways revenues were $32,783,613 compared with $33,177,069, while expenses dropped to $33,355,156 from $34,405,920.

● A delegation on juvenile delinquency which appeared before provincial ministers.

● Representations made to a committee established by the federal department of justice on the problem of juvenile delinquency.

AS LOBBY GROUP

"In each case council was acting as a lobby pressure group," he said.

"There is no reason why something of the techniques of such groups cannot be used in the interest of the community as a whole and that is what we have tried to do," he said.

NOT AUTOMATIC

The results of such efforts are not always immediate or automatic. I do not want to imply that legislators must always stand ready to oppose good and sensible proposals. Such is not the case. The efforts of a good lobby can frequently help win public approval for worthwhile measures.

He pointed out the existence of the family court in Victoria was due to the efforts of earlier councils.

"I believe future generations may well have cause to thank today's council for making the community aware of recreational and other needs."

NEW DIRECTORS

New members of the board of directors this year are Jack Allman, George Bevis, Mrs. May Campbell, Dr. G. Reid Elliot, M. J. Griffin, J. S. Holdstock, Darshan Johal, J. D. Lorimer, Prof. E. L. Martens, Mrs. R. G. McKee, L. Omdie, William Patton, Dr. Roy E. L. Watson, Ald. Mrs. W. H. Wilson, Gordon Wright and Mrs. M. Grayson Young.

Dr. Roy E. L. Watson was elected president; P. B. Blewett, B. A. Tobin and Ald. A. W. Toome, vice-presidents; Mrs. F. Bliss, treasurer, and Mrs. M. Grayson Young, secretary.

The incorporation issue passed 599-49. The students' council feels that incorporation will allow a clearer definition of the rights and obligations of student government at the university, as well as allowing the society to hold property.

The new constitution was passed by a large majority, 597-20. A new constitution became necessary when the council decided to consider incorporation. The old constitution was ambiguous and did not meet with the regulations of the Societies Act.

The third and most controversial issue, that of the fee boost, passed 428-364.

This does not necessarily mean that there will be an AMS fee increase next year as the students' council will have to take it before the College Council to obtain its approval before it becomes effective.

Student expenditures are going up and this year's students' council overspent its budget and had to use a surplus left by last year's council.

MORE MONEY NEEDED

More money is needed if the university is going to take a role proportionate to its new size and status.

Money is needed specifically to finance increased athletic activities, conferences, symposiums, seminars, and the foreign student plan overwhelmingly accepted in a previous referendum.

Students at Victoria University voted yes on all three questions put to them in the form of a referendum by the students' council yesterday.

The questions were: should the Alma Mater Society be incorporated under the B.C. Societies Act, should there be a 56 per cent increase in AMS fees, and should the new constitution be accepted.

72-Mile Walkathon For 72nd Birthday

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Felix Lee Early, a retired railroad man, walked 72 miles to celebrate his 72nd birthday.

He averaged 3 1/4 miles an hour and his longest rest stop during the walk earlier this week was 45 minutes. He consumed six soft drinks, a roast beef sandwich and a cup of ice cream.

Four Perfect Bridge Hands!

KANKAKEE, Ill. (AP)—Nine women who have been meeting twice a month for 32 years to play bridge took part Thursday in the rarest sight in the game—four perfect hands.

Bridge experts said there were no odds on the probability of four perfect hands dealt at one time. The odds on 13 spades being dealt to one person among four players are one in 635,013,339,600. The chances of drawing 13 cards of one suit among four players are one in 158,733,389,900.

The four players were Mrs. Gordon Hay, Mrs. Harry Lehman, Mrs. Lester Wagner and Mrs. Albert Sellers. Mrs. Hay dealt the cards after they had been cut. Being the first bidder, Mrs. Hay bid seven spades.

After a mazed glances were exchanged by the other players, each laid down her hand. Each displayed 13 cards of one suit.

Big Two Head For New Test Of Cuba Nerves

(From AP, UPI)

Tension mounting from attacks on shipping in Cuban waters unleashed a flurry of diplomatic notes Friday as the U.S. and Russia headed for a new test of nerves.

The U.S. state department fired off a note to the Castro regime demanding a full explanation for the MIG attack on a U.S. freighter Thursday. (See also Page 3.)

Shortly before, a Cuban message delivered in Washington declared "there had been no intention on the part of the Cuban government to shoot at" the merchant ship Floridian.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union, in a sharp new note to the U.S., hinted it might arm its merchant ships bound for Cuba to ward off further attacks by Cuban guerrilla exiles.

The Russian note scoffed at U.S. disclaimers of Cuban command strikes and demanded Washington pay the damages for an exile raid that crippled the Russian freighter Baku last Tuesday.

Khrushchev Pledge

At the same time, Premier Khrushchev pledged "aid and support" to Cuba in case of further "trouble."

A U.S. state department spokesman rejected the new Soviet protest as "totally unacceptable."

There was some feeling in the U.S. Congress that the Floridian incident was in retaliation for the exile raids. Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield expressed concern the raids might develop into a "dangerous situation."

The Cuban note marked the first time the Castro regime had acknowledged, even in a left-handed manner, it might be at fault in a brush with the U.S.

Edwin Martin, assistant secretary of state for Latin American affairs, said he was sure efforts would be made to increase surveillance activities "to insure U.S. territory" is not used for such (Cuban exile) attacks, "whether it has or not in the past."

Martin said the U.S. wished the raids had not taken place.

Negative Influence

He said they may have a negative influence on efforts to get Russia to withdraw more of its forces from Cuba. He also said the U.S. does not know where the raids originated but is investigating and will announce results.

The Soviet note, third formal

Kremlin protest to Washington in three days, said Russia "is compelled to consider... adopting appropriate measures to assure the security of Soviet merchant vessels plying to Cuba."

The measures were not spelled out but there was speculation the ships might be armed or escorted.

The Soviet note alleged the exile raids were carried out "with the approval and under the patronage of American authorities."

Fellowship For Victorian

John J. Caesar of Victoria has been awarded a medical research fellowship by the Medical Research Council of Canada, it was announced last night.

The council, part of the research arm of the federal government, awarded 106 fellowships ranging from $3,200 to $5,000 and totalling $459,300. They are for graduate training in research at Canadian universities or in the U.S., Britain, France, Sweden, Denmark, Belgium or Germany.

Khrushchev's promise to come to Cuba's aid was contained in answers to questions submitted by the Brazilian newspaper, Ultima Hora.

"The Soviet Union was and remains a loyal friend of revolutionary Cuba," Khrushchev said in the comments published in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia.

"The Cuban people can always count on our aid and support. We shall not leave our Cuban friends in the lurch."

Police Seek Location Of Pair

City police have received two requests to help locate missing people.

Clifford C. Fernie, 1214 Winsley Avenue, Winnipeg 18, would like to find his brother Douglas W. Fernie, who two years ago lived at 2345 Government and 380 John, to tell him of sickness in the family.

Mrs. Elva E. Lucas, 36-366 McMillan, Winnipeg, is searching for her son Ernest J. Lucas, 32, who was last seen in Vancouver last year and who used to work for the PGE and as a logger. There has been a death in his family.

Horse Tour Popular

An idea to add to the education of horse-owners is popular.

The idea of the tour was to show horse-owners how to improve the breed of Island horses in future generations.

Two well-known horsemen, Bob Shanks and Fred Ball, planned a tour to Island horse breeding farms to show horse-owners the advantage of breeding their animals to recognized stallions.

Originally two buses were to carry the tour but the idea proved such a good one that more buses have been made available.

Rulers 'Ill Starred'

LONDON (Reuters)—The Soviet news agency Tass said Friday Defence Secretary Melnikov has made it clear that U.S. nuclear missiles in Canada are only intended to "distract" Russian missiles from the U.S.

The agency said those "ill-starred rulers" who had made their countries available for U.S. rocket bases would perhaps understand now that "their countries are regarded in the Pentagon plans as targets to divert a rocket blow from America in case of war."

Six Girls Seek Crown

Two more winsome lassies have announced they will seek to be crowned Miss Victoria at the Jaycee spring fair May 13 to 18.

Doug Webb of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce last night announced the names of Carol Lynne Wachter, 19, of 306 Edwards and Susan Jean Mitchell, 19, of 1015 Princess.

There now are six in the running. Others are Judy Jacquot, 18, Ann Rainford, 19, Linda Lou Seales, 20, and Pamela Crawford, 19. About 20 girls are expected to enter eventually.

Mr. Webb said the Point of Canada has announced it will again this year donate a formal gown to be awarded to the winner.

It is described as immaculate blue with a real skirt of white nylon point over pale blue nylon tulle and with a symmetrically draped bodice. Mr. Webb said a mink stole also is expected to be among the prizes.

Girls between 18 and 26 wanting to enter the contest are asked to phone Mr. Webb at 383-0711 or 477-4422 or Win Gareau at 382-6111, local 261, or 383-1184.

Bingo Fear Voiced

Several organizations which base their charitable donations on the amount they can make by sponsoring bingos have expressed fear the charities they help support will suffer under bingo rulings announced this week by the attorney-general's department.

A spokesman for the department said the federal Criminal Code provides that lotteries for charitable purposes may be held "occasionally" in one hall.

A spokesman for the Britannia branch, Royal Canadian Legion, said Thursday it was understood any one group could hold no more than 25 games in a year.

But the attorney-general's department has said bingo would be confined to 25 games a year in any one hall, regardless of who holds them.

"This is going to be a real hardship for us," said a spokesman for the Esquimalt branch of the Legion, one of three groups holding regular bingos in the Blighard Street Legion Hall.

"We depend on these bingos to support our minor league hockey and soccer teams and the junior Olympic training plan."

"Many charities are going to be hurt under this ruling," he said. "The old age pensioners group and the Ex-Servicemen's branch do a lot of good, too."

Chant Pledges

Old Courthouse
Due Second Look

The provincial government has given no indication when it would reach a decision on disposal of the old courthouse in Bastion Square, a city hall spokesman said yesterday.

Works Minister W. N. Chant, however, has given his assurance that the government will take "a second look" at the city's proposal for an exchange of properties.

Mayor R. B. Wilson met the provincial works minister to discuss the situation yesterday, at Mr. Chant's request. Nothing definite came of the meeting but civic representatives were left with the impression that settlement wouldn't be negotiated "overnight."

The mayor said following the meeting both parties felt it would be to the benefit of both Victoria and the government if the now-idle courthouse was put to use.

MAJOR ROLE

"We felt that the courthouse, used to house something in the nature of the B.C. Maritime Museum or a centre of the arts, could play a major role in the rehabilitation of the whole of Bastion Square," Mayor Wilson said.

He added that the city regards this possibility as "highly desirable."

Some time ago Mr. Chant said the government would be willing to negotiate an exchange of the courthouse for city-owned property within the boundaries of the proposed government precinct in James Bay.

MATTER LAPPED

When it was disclosed that the city only owned a handful of vacant lots in the designated area the matter to all outward appearances lapsed until Mr. Chant asked for a meeting with Mayor Wilson a week or so ago.

EXTENT NOT KNOWN

The city has properties which it believes the government would consider taking in return for the courthouse, but so far the location and extent of the properties under consideration hasn't been made public.

The city recently purchased the former Duncan storage building adjoining the old courthouse for $15,000. This property is regarded as the key to future re-development of Bastion Square and the surrounding Old Lower Town area.

Boy Injured
In Gym Fall

An Oak Bay High School boy is in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital after falling from a high bar in the school gymnasium yesterday afternoon.

David Nancarrow, 17, of 5586 Tillicum, was rushed to hospital by Oak Bay fire department ambulance where he is being treated for concussion.

Prosecutor
Leaves Post

Acting city prosecutor Kenneth Murphy said yesterday that he will relinquish his position today.

"As far as I know," he said, "city solicitor T. P. O'Grady will take over until a successor is appointed."

"I will be avoiding him from time to time if he requests it," Mr. Murphy said.

Inside-Square Ideas
Backed by Business

Proposals to include a shopping arcade and limited convention facilities in Centennial Square yesterday received the blessings of merchants, real estate interests and hotelmen.

Ald. A. W. Toome, chairman of the committee in charge of planning the $2,000,000 project, said the reaction of business representatives invited to city hall was generally favorable.

From the real estate point of view, Ald. Toome said, there would also appear to be no problems provided the city charged competitive rates, which it has every intention of doing.

A $46,350 budget for a year-round program of entertainment was presented to city council by Greater Victoria Celebrations Association.

Association president Ed MacFayden said in a letter the costs listed were only "approximate" at this stage.

In addition to the traditional May 24 weekend celebrations, the association proposes to stage summer events and mark the city's birthday Aug. 2 with children's sports and fireworks.

There would be an adults' sports day Aug. 3 with events including car racing and a swimming meet and in September a week-long carnival in Memorial Arena.

The proposed budget was referred to the finance committee for study.

It listed expenses of $46,350 including $7,000 for office administration and revenues of $18,900.

Some estimated costs of events are aerial fireworks display in Victoria Day program, $3,000; rest of Victoria Day program, $8,500; children's sports day, $2,500; adults' sports, $3,000; fireworks Aug. 2, $3,000, and September carnival, $7,100.

The bird that made Victoria famous is coming back into its own.

At the first meeting of the new Victoria visitors' bureau, directors voted to adopt as its official slogan and motif the time-honored "Follow the birds to Victoria" and accompanying seagull.

The slogan, devised 42 years ago by George I. Warren, commissioner of the old Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, had been soft-pedalled by the bureau the last couple of years in favor of a new catchphrase, describing Vancouver Island as "Canada's Treasure Island."

Elected president of the new bureau Friday was G. Conway Parrott, general manager of Vancouver Island Coach Lines and one of the old gull's staunchest friends.

Shortly after the bureau's 1960 switch of emphasis to the "Treasure Island" theme, Mr.

Motto Never Dropped

William Hawkins, top sales official of both new if hotel and motel proprietors feel the need of such a service, one when it wound up recently, said at Friday's meeting that the "Follow the Birds" slogan was never dropped by the old bureau and still appears on promotional literature it puts out.

Directors voted to recommend the name Victoria Visitors Bureau for the new organization, but to leave final decision on the name in abeyance until further appointments are made to the board of directors.

A. M. Titterle of Victoria's Auto Courts and Resorts Association and Ken King of the Vancouver Island branch of the Canadian Restaurant Association, were approved as bureau directors, subject to their organizations filling such financial support requirements as the bureau's membership committee will establish.

The bureau's executive committee was empowered to set up various committees, including one to work with the hotel association and other industry organizations and another to deal with proposals that the bureau operate an accommodation finding service similar to last year's Expo-Lodging.

Victoria Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said the bureau should not

Eagle Nest 'Robbed'

By ALEC MERRIMAN
Colonist Outdoors Editor

We helped rob a bald eagle nest Sunday but it was in the interest of science and the eagle had the full approval of wildlife authorities.

Within 25 minutes after tree climbing arborist Michael Gye had reached the six-foot-across and five-foot-deep eagle nest 100 feet up in the fir treetop, the three eggs found in the nest were safely tucked away in an incubator at the home of youthful ecologist David Hancock.

Rare Occasion

If the eggs hatch as expected it will be one of the few times that bald eagle eggs have been taken from a nest and hatched artificially.

Mr. Hancock has undertaken the study of the bald eagle population as a project for his Victoria University ecology 320 course, under Dr. Edwin Hagmeyer.

Information he gains from his studies will be made available to wildlife authorities and may help discover why the bald eagle population appears on an alarming decrease all over North America.

Special Counts

Mr. Hancock, 24, is a qualified float plane pilot and uses an aircraft to help him in his bird studies, both on the eagle survey and special waterfowl population counts he takes in conjunction with provincial fish and game branch studies.

Our Sunday adventure started at Canoe Cove where we boarded a yacht in company with tree climbers Michael Gye and Ted Tuttle, Sonia Gye and two young falcons, John Sheppard and Rick Payne, both 17, and in the early stages of learning falconry.

Three eggs in eagles' nest may make ecological history. They have been placed in an incubator and may become the first eggs to be taken from an eagle nest and hatched artificially.

Mr. Hancock and Brian Davies, another young falconer who helps Mr. Hancock in his bird studies, led the way in a float plane and one of the Gulf Islands was the target.

The couple in the aircraft found a nest in a high tree close to the shore, tried unsuccessfully to drive the eagle off the nest and then led us to a nearby safe anchorage.

The party crashed through the bush to the foot of the tree . . . and from there it looked just about impossible to climb that tree and get the eggs.

when other birds rob a nest. Almost certainly the eagle will return to lay another clutch of eggs.

Mr. Tuttle climbed an adjacent tree to photograph the operation.

There was no guarantee there would be eggs in the nest and a whoop of joy went up when three still warm eggs were found. Also in the nest was a dead Cooper's hawk, which was probably killed when it attacked the eagle.

Packed in Cotton

Eggs were packed in cotton wool and lowered by rope in a canister. Mr. Hancock lost no time in getting the eggs, crashing through the woods to the beached aircraft and taking off.

It took him seven minutes to land on Elk Lake and four minutes to rush the eggs to the incubator at his home. The whole operation from treetop to incubator took only 25 minutes.

Waiting Period

Now it is a matter of waiting to see if the eggs hatch. Incubation period is normally 35 days, but there is no telling how long the eagle had been sitting on the nest.

Mr. Hancock plans to study and record the growth, development and behavior of the young eagles. Already he is studying live eagles he keeps at the Durran Road zoo.

The young stay in the nests from 2½ to three months and it is four years before they attain adult plumage. Eagles do live to be 50 years old, but nine or 10 years is a more realistic life span.

Victoria Sings
Spring Song

Typical spring weather is expected in the Greater Victoria area over the weekend.

Southwest winds of 15 miles an hour, occasionally gusting to 25 miles an hour, are predicted. The sky will be cloudy and showery with occasional sunny periods today and Sunday.

Six feet across and five feet deep this bald eagle nest was big enough to hold Michael Gye. He climbed 100 feet up giant fir to get eggs from nest to further scientific studies of Victoria University student David Hancock, who hopes to hatch them in incubator.

Things-to-Do At 'Y' Easter Week

Boys and girls, ages 9 through 14, are being offered an unusual program of "things-to-do" during the Easter week vacation, Monday, April 15 through Friday, April 19, at the YWCA.

Starting at 11 a.m. and lasting until 3 p.m. each day, the youngsters will have the opportunity to learn how to train their pet dog by an experienced trainer, Michael Williams; visit the Williams Dog Kennels; Francis Nature Park and the Crystal Springs Beverage Co.; swim; take part in a pet show and finally a special tour of Victoria harbor. The program will be supervised by Miss Denise Yates and other qualified "Y" instructors.

For further information about the low fee and registration, interested parents are invited to call the YWCA at EV 4-7179. Hurry! Participants will be limited to 30.

Another evening of games and refreshment was enjoyed at a shower given by Mrs. J. W. Love and her daughter, Mrs. P. Fowles, at Mrs. Love's Lee Avenue home.

New Bonnets To Be Shown

The WA of the Church-by-the-Lake will hold a spring bonnet tea in the church hall on Saturday, April 6, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Jewsbury of the Minnie Beveridge Millinery Shop, will present a showing of newest spring hats.

There will also be home baking for sale, and a garden stall. It will be held in the church hall of the Church-by-the-Lake at Elk Lake on the Pat Bay Highway.

Racquet Club LA Formed

A Ladies' Auxiliary to the Racquet Club of Victoria was formed recently. Mrs. J. Crampson was elected chairman; Mrs. A. Carnes, vice-chairman; Mrs. D. Schjoldhaug, secretary and Mrs. I. Ker, treasurer.

It is the Auxiliary's object to assist in junior activities and to encourage the senior membership to participate, also to further the club facilities.

A spring fashion show, afternoon bridge parties and other social functions are planned for the near future.

Meetings will be held on the third Tuesday of each month at 8 p.m. in the club lounge.

AMY By Harry Mace

"Speak louder, Rosemary... It's hard to hear ya."

Traditional, old-fashioned Greek Easter bread is something delicious and different to offer Easter Sunday callers.

Traditional

Greek Easter Bread Attractive, Sweet

In many Greek homes, the week before Easter is spent making special food to have handy when friends and relatives drop by over Easter weekend.

Traditional in many parts of the country is a cloverleaf-shaped bread, which is said originally to have symbolized the Holy Trinity.

Be that as it may, Greek Easter bread is sweet enough and attractive enough to serve as a dessert with fruit or sherbet any time of the year, as well as for holiday and weekend breakfasts.

The bread is moist and light in texture, with a speckling right the way through of raisins and candied peel. The topping is almond-flavored confectioners' frosting, decorated with candied peel and almond slivers.

Based on a traditional recipe for Greek Easter Bread, the one below has been adapted to take advantage of modern baking methods and ingredients.

GREEK EASTER BREAD (Yield—one loaf)

Half cup lukewarm water; 1 teaspoon granulated sugar; 1 envelope fast-rising active dry yeast; 2 tablespoons shortening; 1 cup granulated sugar; 1 teaspoon salt; 1 whole egg; 1 egg yolk; 2 tablespoons instant skim milk powder; 2 cups (about) pre-sifted, all-purpose flour; 1 cup finely-cut candied citron; 2 tablespoons finely-cut candied orange peel; blanched almonds; candied cherries and slivers of candied citron.

Measure lukewarm water; stir in the one teaspoon sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well.

Meantime, cream shortening in a large mixing bowl; gradually blend in the 1 cup sugar and salt. Add whole egg and egg yolk and beat well. Stir in dissolved yeast, milk powder, if being used, and 1 1/2 cups of the flour; beat until smooth and elastic. Stir in sufficient additional flour to make a soft dough—about 1 cup more.

Turn out on floured board or canvas and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl. Grease top.

SMORGASBORD

The Women's Auxiliary to the Cerebral Palsy Association are holding a smorgasbord luncheon in the Hudson's Bay Douglas Room on Wednesday, April 3, from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Door prize.

Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk—about 1 1/2 hours.

Meantime, combine raisins, citron and candied orange peel. Punch down dough. Turn out on lightly-floured board or canvas. Spread prepared fruit over dough and knead to distribute fruit. Divide dough into equal portions; shape each portion into a smooth ball.

Place the balls of dough, just touching, in a clover-leaf shape on greased cookie sheet. Brush with soft butter or margarine. Cover with a tea towel. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk—about 1 hour. Bake in a moderately hot oven, 375° F., 20 to 25 minutes. While warm, brush top with the following confectioners' frosting and decorate with blanched almonds, citron and candied cherries.

CONFECTIONERS' FROSTING

One cup sifted icing sugar; slightly-beaten egg white; few drops almond extract.

Combine icing sugar with sufficient egg white to make a frosting of desired consistency. Stir in almond extract.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a shoe salesman and I'm having trouble with my women customers. This is not a business problem but a human relations problem.

Wouldn't you think a person would be more interested in wearing a shoe that fits properly than anything else? Well, this isn't the way an awful lot of women figure it. I see customers all day long who would rather jam their size 8 B's into a 7A (and suffer) than buy the right size. Some women get insulted if you tell them their feet have gotten bigger with age. They suddenly find all sorts of things wrong with the shoe, especially if a friend happens to be along. I've lost many sales because I tried to be honest.

I'd like your advice. Should I fit these women properly and tell them the truth? Or shall I sell them size instead of fit and let them limp out?

—HONEST ABE.

Dear Abe: Psychology has always been an important part of selling.

The ladies garment industry missed up a long time ago. The better dresses are "cut more generously." Translated into English this means if milady buys the dress off the rack she'd better reach for the 16. If she buys a better dress she can easily get into a size 14. This is great for the customer's morale and it's nice for the retailer, too.

If the shoe manufacturers would take a cue from the manufacturers of the better dresses there would be less demand for bunions and corn-plasters and your job would be a lot easier. Abe.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 37, single, naive, and in good health. My problem is a mother who will not let me be on my own.

Dad died when I was 19. Mother and I remained in the family home. Four years ago my sister was divorced and mother and I moved into her house because her children were in college. This summer her college children will be home for good.

I decided now is the time for me to get my own apartment. Mother says, "If you leave me—this is it." She really means that if I leave her I am out of her will.

She claims any bachelor who would prefer an apartment alone to sharing quarters with his widowed mother is immoral and wants to lead a wild life. I just want to be on my own. Your opinion is requested. —TENNESSEE TROUBLES.

Dear Tennessee: A man who has let his mama lead him around by the nose for 37 years may have such an emotional cripple that he is unable to function as an independent adult.

Now is the time to find out if you can make it. If you allow mom's threat to influence you, you're trading your chance for an independent life for a sack of shells. The light is green. And the word is go.

Dear Ann Landers: When are girls going to get smart and demand the same standard of virtue that the boys demand of them?

The guy who wants to play around with tramps while he's dating and then expects a good girl when he's "ready for something important like marriage" ought to be sent to the bargain basement right along with the girls he helped to put there.

I've been talking this way for a long time, Ann. When I was in high school girls told me I'd never find a boy with standards that high. But I found him, and I married him, and I'll wager he is more manly than those creeps who had so much "proving" to do before marriage.

I'm sure I didn't get the only good guy in the world. There must be others left. Happy hunting, girls. MRS. LUCKY.

Dear Lucky: Not all boys demand white-flower girls for marriage, but I agree that those who do should have an unsullied record themselves.

Out-of-town relatives at the reception were Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Wood, Campbell River;

Bernadette Winstanley, left, Cathy Gower and Paddy Thistle have been busy with other members of St. Patrick's Church Girl Guides in making posters and generally advertising the coffee party to be put on by the Girl Guide Association. The party will be held on April 3 from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. D. J. Lawson, 2395 Lansdowne. There will also be a home bake stall. —(William A. Boucher)

Wives Working for Victory

There are many women, mainly behind the scenes, who are working hard to promote their own candidates in victory in the forthcoming election on April 8. Both voters and wives are taking an active part in the campaign.

Pam Windsor, wife of the New Democratic Party candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, says she is no expert on politics, but believes that in this election particularly, women are aware of the importance of their vote. She adds, "I don't know any more about politics than the average housewife, but I do have a great interest in the future of Canada, where my children will grow up and make their homes."

Mrs. Windsor feels women are taking more interest in this election because of the nuclear arms issue and medicare. A strong stand is taken by her husband's party on both matters.

Pam Windsor came to Canada from her home in Essex, England, in 1946. With her was 16-month-old Jane. Her husband, John Windsor, had been wounded during the war and followed her to Canada in a hospital ship. After a short stay in Calgary, the Windsors went east, where John attended Queen's University.

Due to her husband's total blindness incurred during the war, Pam Windsor became her husband's note-taker in an industrial relations course.

The Windsors' second daughter, Judith, was born when they came to live in Vancouver.

On a trip to the Island, Pam decided if they could ever choose where they wanted to live, Brentwood would be it. In 1953 they moved to their present home at Brentwood.

"I grew up in a rural district and I think it's best for the children," she says.

Of her husband's blindness, she says, "We don't feel that we are any different from anyone else on the block. Perhaps some of our neighbors are combating

MRS. JOHN WINDSOR

MRS. HARRY FANTHORPE

a far worse disability than this, but it just isn't so obvious. We never think of John's blindness. My home is run like any other, except that the doors are left either completely open or shut."

Fortunately, Pam Windsor enjoys the rigors of public life.

"I like people and seeing new places. You never know who you're going to meet next."

Although her husband was a Central Saanich councillor for a number of years, Pam Windsor has contented herself with being Sunday school teacher and on the executive of the Brentwood Elementary School PTA. This is the school that seven-year-old Stephen Windsor attends.

diate for Victoria, in her home town of Milner in the Langley district. Both their families had lived in the vicinity for nearly 60 years.

Although Elissa's father was an engineer on the CPR coastal ships, she grew up on the family farm in the Fraser Valley.

She and her husband have lived in the Victoria area for 21 years and they have three children. Maureen is 17 and will graduate from Oak Bay High School this year, 15-year-old Lynne is in Grade 9 at Lansdowne Junior High, and Jamie, who is 7½, attends Oaklands Elementary School.

Elissa Fanthorpe was in the first group of women to train as welders in the shipyards during the last war. Her husband worked as a machinist in the shipyards at that time.

"I worked there for almost three years, then I decided I wanted a family. I think I timed it pretty well, because Maureen was born on VJ Day, Aug. 15."

In 1944 Harry Fanthorpe went into commercial fishing, but his wife says, "I'm no sailor and I never went out on the boat."

Four years later, the Fanthorpes built their own machine shop. "We're strictly do-it-yourselfers!" she says.

As a hobby, Elissa goes to night school, where she has taken courses in tailoring and upholstery.

"Just recently I covered the cushions and along came the election. So I guess they'll have to wait until April 9," she laughs.

She sews for all the family and enjoys gardening also. She favors skating as a sport and takes Little Jamie to the Arena almost every week.

New Styles Need Jewels

By PEGGY MANN
PARIS (Reuters) — Silhouette trends and plunging necklines, featured in the latest French fashion collections, should prove a boon to the jewelry business.

The theme for jewelry to fit the new styles is "the bigger, the better."

As hairlines soar to lofty heights, wide collars and chokers call attention to swanlike necks. An décolleté switch from back to front, cascade necklaces and headlight pins audaciously play up the Folies Bergere necklines.

In a season which rivets attention on sleeve treatments, novel bracelets are worn by the dozen.

Design and media make further news. Over-all trends feature one dramatic piece worn at a focal point of the silhouette.

Classic pearl necklaces are replaced by triple-strand shoulder straps of pearls on evening gowns. New bracelet-ling combinations are contrived entirely in one piece.

Balenciaga shows enormous cameo brooches measuring three inches in diameter. A giant heart-shaped brooch made of emerald green glass is framed with pearls. The famous Balenciaga suits and sport clothes have accessories of multi-strand dog collars contrived on thin gold chains.

Garden Notes

Start with Crowbar

By M. V. CHENUT, FRHS

BROWN PATCHES ON LAWN— (L.F., Victoria). Those unsightly brown patches on your lawn could be due to a fungus infection, or a dog may be paying your garden an occasional visit, or possibly there is builders' rubbish of some kind buried under the surface and interfering with the proper deep rooting of the grass.

I suggest you start by probing with a crowbar, for you'd be surprised how often slabs of rock, ends of boards and chunks of sheet metal are left in the ground by the builders. If your probe encounters anything like this, the only thing to do is lift the sod over the bad patches and remove the offending material.

To check on disease, the manufacturers of Panogen Turf Spray, Merfusan and Ortho Lawn & Turf Fungicide put out booklets describing the symptoms and appearance of the various infections and recommendations for their control. This literature is available free of charge at most good garden shops.

The best way I have found to discourage the attentions of dogs on a lawn is to treat the grass occasionally with a Weed Bar—a wax "log" impregnated with 2,4-D weedkiller. Just drag it over the lawn; the smell of the stuff seems to be repulsive to dogs.

WINDOW BOX FLOWERS— (R.M.H., Courtenay). There are dozens of annual plants of a suitable size and habit of growth for planting up window boxes, but for my money the most satisfactory of the lot is the petunia. Most of the others have a fairly short season of growth, but the indefatigable petunia keeps on pushing out flowers all summer long, providing a constant splash of color.

Buy plants of a dwarf, compact type such as the hybrid multifloras and in a color which will blend harmoniously with the trim of the house. If you wish, you could plant a few of the balcony or trailing petunias along the edge of the box to dangle over the edge.

SAFE BUG-KILLER (A.G.J., Victoria). I can understand your reluctance to use poison sprays in your garden after reading Silent Spring, although personally I think the author has exaggerated the effects of these sprays and has stated only one side of the case. I should also remind you no spray chemical may be sold in Canada until it has passed the most rigorous government tests establishing its safety limits. The government licence number appears on the label of every spray.

However, if you want to play safe, you can always control the commoner insect pests with sprays or dusts based on derris, rotenone or pyrethrum. Derris and rotenone are extracted from the roots of a tropical vine, pyrethrum from the flowers of a wild chrysanthemum. These are deadly to insects and fish but non-poisonous to warm-blooded creatures.

A most dramatic demonstration was given recently at the official opening of a new pyrethrum packing factory in East Africa. After showing the visitors how the dust would kill off colonies of insects in cages, the demonstrator sat down and ate a bowlful of the stuff himself!

ART BUCHWALD Sniffs at Law

Separate But Equal Garbage

LOS ANGELES— Many communities are concerned about the separation of church and state, but Los Angeles has a much more serious problem at the moment—the separation of tin cans and garbage.

When the city council passed a law that Angelinos have to classify their refuse, and garbage was to be put out on one day and bottles and tin cans on another, everyone squawked from the mayor on down to Jayne Mansfield.

And when the council passed a law that anyone who didn't segregate his garbage would be liable to a $500 fine and six months in jail, the cries of anguish echoed from the hills of Hollywood to the streets of San Pedro.

We didn't realize how serious the issue was until we started talking to friends in Hollywood who were against separate but equal containers for garbage.

Allan Sherman, the folk singer, was disturbed by the logic of it all and told us: "Once you classify garbage, it's no longer garbage. The reason you call it garbage is that it is unclassified. Otherwise it becomes lettuce leaves, watermelon rinds, egg shells, clam shells, orange peels. We need filing cabinets instead of garbage pails to do the job properly."

Bill Dana, who plays Jose Jimenez on records and television, was even more disturbed: "I've never been good about separating garbage, even as a kid, and I was sure I would wind up in jail when the council passed the law. I could just see myself in a cell and a guy saying to me, 'What are you in for?' to which I'd have to reply, 'They found a broken Pepsi-Cola in my rutabaga leaves.'"

"Or I was framed. My neighbor's kid tossed a crackerjack box in with my TV dinner."

"How did the council plan on penalizing the people?" we asked.

"No one is quite sure because the council rescinded the law the next day," Mr. Sherman said, "but I have a friend in city hall who said it would have worked something like this. If you throw an anchovy can into your garbage it would be considered a misdemeanor, a tomato soup can would have meant a felony and for a pineapple juice large economy size can they would have sent you to the gas chamber."

Mr. Dana told us the thing about garbage in Los Angeles is it attracts flies and Los Angeles citizens have been urged to spray their garbage before putting it out.

"We have a saying in Los Angeles," he told us, "a family who sprays together stays together."

Mr. Sherman contributed this: One of the reasons people have been less vociferous about the city council's doings in regard to garbage is everyone is afraid that if they complain the council has an alternate plan to put into effect, known as Plan B.

The implementation of Plan B would mean that you could only dispose of garbage which began with the letter of the day. For example, Monday the sanitation department would only collect things starting with "M" such as musk melon, mint leaves, macaroni, myrrh and melba toast.

Tuesday you could only throw out ten bags, tomatoes, truffles, tripe and tarts.

Mr. Dana said: "Plan B is unfair because only German-born people can throw out zweiback on Saturday."

"What happens to the segregated garbage and tin cans?" we asked.

"They take it to Arizona on freight trains," Mr. Sherman said, "and mix it all up together again."

We wanted to talk longer, but our friends had to go home and classify their garbage for the next day.

Mr. Dana was very philosophical about it: "Well, at least it keeps you from watching television."

Bardot Spies on Perkins

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)— Brigitte Bardot plays a spy for the French Navy in her new film. Tony Perkins is the Soviet spy she uncovers.

Otto Preminger will make a star of Tom Tryon in The Cardinal if it breaks both of them. He is giving him the "Otto" treatment to which Jean Seberg objected to so strongly after she starred as Joan of Arc for perfectionist Preminger.

Elizabeth Taylor's second chin was showing in that news photograph with Richard Burton in London. It wouldn't hurt Richard to lose a few pounds.

Whoever it was who said Edward G. Robinson would never make another picture after that heart attack last year, should have seen him at the royal premiere of his Sammy Going South film in London. Eddie, looking very well, was monopolized by Princess Margaret and her husband, Lord Snowdon.

Alfred Hitchcock sometimes gets away with murder. I saw his latest shocker, The Birds, and I was not frightened. Merely horrified. The stars, or rather the villains of the piece, are birds of all sizes and shapes. They should give an Oscar to the bird trainer.

Van Johnson has a busy six months to follow his current film at Paramount. On April 2, Van appears in Bye, Bye Birdie in San Francisco, after which he tours in Guys and Dolls, Damn Yankees and The Music Man.

Not many actors like their pictures. The only time in years that Gregory Peck has liked himself on the screen is in his present hit, To Kill a Mockingbird. Greg's Gums of Navarone was a big success, but I didn't hear him say he liked his performance.

At High School

Cheetah to Set Stage For Movie on Animals

A live cheetah will be on hand to set the stage for a two-hour sound motion picture of a pack train trip through the Rocky Mountains to Banff, to be shown at Victoria High School Monday and Tuesday.

The seven-month trip was filmed by Al Oeming, founder and proprietor of the Alberta Game Farm, near Edmonton, which has 1,500 animals of 67 different species and 1,500 birds of 66 species, on 1,000 acres of land 14 miles east of Edmonton. The film includes pictures of grizzly bears, mountain

Gina Lollobrigida says she is pleased with the European success of her Imperial Venus film with Stephen Boyd. Steve has given some interviews saying he does not care very much for the picture.

Sabrina, of the large statistics, is back in her native England, after five years of roaming the world, mostly Hollywood. She told them in London that she was a big hit in South America, although they did not understand a word of what she was saying. With Sabrina's measurements, who needs words?

It was amusing to read that Princess Alexandra's fiancé Angus Ogilvy, when introduced to veteran actress Jeanie Matthews at the royal command film performance, told her, "You were my favorite pinup girl for years."

Alberni Plane
Crash
Fatal

ALBERNI—A Vancouver man presumably died Thursday in the spiralling crash of his light plane into an arm of Sproat Lake, about 15 miles from here.

Wreckage of a small plane, found Friday, has been identified as that of a Mooney aircraft which, piloted by Richard Hansen, 30, Vancouver, took off from the mainland city Thursday afternoon.

SPOTTED FROM AIR
The debris was first spotted by an RCAF Search and Rescue helicopter, and positive identification made by a ground party guided to the location by the copter.

Mr. Hansen, an electrical contractor, took off Thursday at 2:45 p.m. on a flight to Bella Coola and Prince Rupert.

He was reported as missing, and is believed to have been driven off course by Thursday's bad weather in the area.

SPILLING DOWN
People living near Sproat Lake reported Thursday seeing a plane spiralling down and vanishing, its motor screaming, behind a mountain at about 4 p.m.

Search by air and land that day failed to bring results, and was resumed Friday, still in bad weather with intermittent snow.

World
In Brief

TUCSON, Ariz.—At least six persons were killed and 18 injured Friday as an explosion shattered a downtown cleaning plant. A steam boiler blew up.

STRASBOURG, France—The six-nation European assembly abandoned efforts to force an early resumption of talks on Britain's bid to join the Common Market.

NEW YORK—Mayor Robert Wagner announced striking photo-engravers had agreed to vote Tuesday on a rearrangement of a contract offer they have received from the publishers of eight shutdown newspapers.

LONDON—Lightning tore a hole in the nose of a jet airliner bound for New York, with 110 passengers, but the plane landed safely. The Trans World Airlines Boeing 707 took a 27-by-44-inch hole in its nose and the pilot dumped 10,000 gallons of fuel before landing.

DAVOS, Switzerland—Swiss police warned photographers taking pictures of vacationing Princess Margaret will be expelled from the country.

Mac's Car

CP from Reuters-AP. BROMLEY, England—A group of anti-nuclear demonstrators Friday night rocked and buffeted the car containing Prime Minister Macmillan and his wife after he defended Britain's nuclear deterrent in a speech here.

Macmillan told a Conservative party rally in this southern England town it would be wrong for Britain or Europe to rely solely on the U.S. nuclear deterrent.

Extra police were rushed to the scene when 150 anti-bomb supporters gathered outside the hall, waiting for the prime minister to leave.

Warheads Make Canada Decoy
Says John D

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Friday night the Liberal party proposed policy of arming Canada's Bomarc missiles with nuclear warheads will make Canada a decoy for attack.

He told a boisterous meeting at Kingston Arena that United States Defence Secretary McNamara had dropped the bottom out of the Liberal election campaign.

"The Pearson policy is to make Canada a decoy for the intercontinental missiles," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

"BOTTOM FELL OUT"
"The whole bottom fell out of the Liberal program today with the McNamara revelation."

Bomarc Worth It

(From CP)

WASHINGTON—Views of U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara on the efficiency of the Bomarc anti-aircraft weapon burst like a bombshell on the Canadian election scene Friday.

The statements were contained in a transcript of testimony given earlier by McNamara to a closed-door congressional investigating group. He said one of the uses of the Bomarc is to draw enemy ballistic missile fire in the event of war.

ONLY $20,000,000
He said he would remove the Bomarc's altogether but for the fact the annual maintenance costs are no more than $20,000,000 and "I think we are getting our money's worth."

At the very least, he said, the Bomarc "would cause the Soviets to target missiles against them and thereby increase their missile requirements or draw missiles onto these Bomarc targets that would otherwise be available for other targets."

TWO AREAS
He referred to the lack of adequate dispersal as one problem affecting U.S. Bomarc's. These squadrons are located in the northeastern and central parts of the country. (Continued on Page 2)

Poppies
Free!

Hard on the heels of the first free seed offer from M. V. Chernus, garden columnist of The Daily Colonist, a second offer begins in Sunday's edition.

The recent first offer was a new marigold, Pflizer's Hybrid; this one is an even newer flower, a compact, colorful California poppy called Mission Belle.

Hecklers Laid Low

16,000 Hear Douglas

By BEN WARD

TORONTO (CP)—New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas drew nearly 16,000 persons into Maple Leaf Gardens Friday night and told them it's time Canada elected a government "which knows where it is going and how it is going to get there."

Obviously buoyed by the huge and enthusiastic crowd, the NDP leader cut loose with a scathing attack on the Liberal election themes, derided the Diefenbaker government for what he called procrastination and indecision, and laid low a scattering of hecklers.

CLOSE DOORS

A Gardens spokesman said turnstile attendants clocked 15,812 admissions on their automatic counters. Firemen finally ordered the doors closed because of fire regulations which had been relaxed somewhat to allow for 1,250 extra chairs on the board-covered ice surface of the big hockey rink.

Mr. Douglas had one almost serious brush with a young heckler who leaped onto the platform just after Mr. Douglas had been introduced and was waiting for the applause to subside.

pushed Mr. Douglas aside, leaped into the battery of microphones and shouted, "Not Douglas, but Pearson."

Startled organizers tried to push the man back. When he resisted, four of them seized him and hustled him off the stage and out of the building where he disappeared before reporters could reach him.

BEST FRIENDS

At another point, when the New Democratic chief was referring to American control of the Canadian economy, a loud voice barked:

"Stop crying. The Americans are our best friends."

"Of course they're our best friends," Mr. Douglas shot back.

Liberals
'Punctured'

TORONTO (CP)—T. C. Douglas said Friday that statements by United States Defence Secretary McNamara on the usefulness of the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile "completely punctured" Liberal leader Pearson's argument that Canada must accept nuclear warheads for its two Bomarc bases.

MISSILE 'TWIST' ABSURD--PEARSON

By TED SHACKLEFORD

The nuclear issue took the spotlight last night as Liberal leader Lester Pearson spoke to an overflow meeting of more than 2,200 people in two Victoria theatres.

"Having spent $700,000,000 of your money and my money on the purchase of this equipment, the prime minister says the Bomarc missile which he acquired is no good. How absurd can you get?" he asked. "If he feels this way let him scrap them."

TO TWO CROWDS

Mr. Pearson was speaking to 1,150 people in the Royal Theatre with his speech piped in to another 750 in the Plaza Theatre.

Outside the Royal Theatre about 30 men and women picketed with signs against Canada accepting nuclear arms. Mr. and Mrs. Pearson walked through the pickets to enter the theatre.

Moderate heckling was ignored by Mr. Pearson as he spoke. When a heckler interrupted Mr. Pearson raised his voice and drowned out the interruption.

NO QUESTION PERIOD

No question period was allowed after Mr. Pearson had finished his speech. He left the Royal immediately and spoke briefly to the audience in the Plaza Theatre before returning to the Empress Hotel. "He (Diefenbaker) wiped aside our objections in the House of Commons and boasted he was going to scrap the Avro Arrow and replace it with the Bomarc."

"When it came time for the government to follow through on its commitments last autumn—three years after the original

Strike Up
The Ban

Liberal leader Lester Pearson was expressiveness last night as he and Mrs. Pearson arrived at the Royal Theatre to find they had to cross a "Ban the Bomb" picket line of some 30 people carrying signs and nuclear disarmament emblems. An aide helped clear a path for them into the theatre. (Bud Kinsmen.)

$4,000 in Payroll Cheques
'Sent to Gagliardi's Home'Project 1023 Named
As 'Get Well Job'

A controversial highway project alleged to have been awarded to a firm as a "get well job" to cover previous losses was identified in a Colonial news story Friday as Project 819. The story stated highways department consultant A. E. Rhodes had testified Project 819 cost double the estimate. What he said was that Project 1023 cost double the estimate.

The testimony came from Fred S. Bell, accountant for a group of companies involved in highway Project 819. He said orders to put the two men on the payroll came from Burton Lymburner, president of L. & M. Logging Ltd., the prime contractor.

But he testified he never saw the men at work on the $100,000 highway project. Mr. Lymburner was described earlier by star witness Dick Holzworth as a man paid

Gagliardi and keeping the door closed. Mr. Bell told the afternoon session of the probe Mr. Lymburner's job "seemed to be to take care of negotiations with the department."

Earlier he had said "badly" his role was to find other work and investigate other prospects for the company.

MEN NAMED

He identified the two men whose cheques were sent to the minister's home as Dominick Donatelli and Larry Jontz.

He produced the cancelled cheques and said he had brought them with him. They were released to him by the RCMP after they had conducted an investigation into the project.

Mr. Bell said he had never met Donatelli or Jontz.

COUNSEL QUERY

Were they ever physically employed on Project 819? asked committee counsel Lloyd McKenzie.

"Not to my knowledge," the witness answered.

Asked if he knew the men never worked on the project, he replied, "I never saw them on the job."

Was it reasonable he might not have seen them if they worked there?

'John's Rug
Not Ours'

Liberal leader Lester Pearson laughed yesterday at Prime Minister Diefenbaker's claim that a high United States official had "pulled the rug" from under Mr. Pearson's stand on nuclear arms for Canada. "It's Mr. Diefenbaker's rug, not ours," he said when he arrived at Patricia Bay airport at 4:30 p.m. yesterday.

Chopped

Reductions in electric (and or, the mainland, gas) rates to save customers just under $5,000,000 a year were announced today by Dr. G. M. Shrum and Dr. Hugh Kenney, co-chairmen of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

Commercial users of electricity will benefit most by the new reduction, the hydro statement said, with an annual saving of $2,850,000.

Residential electric customers will get a saving of $1,300,000.

ANNIVERSARY

Announcement of details of the lower rates, the statement said, followed Premier Bennett's "recent statement that reductions would be introduced on the first anniversary of the merger of the former B.C. Electric and B.C. Power Commission."

The new rates will be effective on the first full month billing after April 1.

The co-chairmen said the new reduction, combined with the $3,500,000 reduction announced in March last year, would pass on to Hydro customers $11,200,000 and would bolster provincial economy by this added amount of consumer spending in British Columbia.

RESIDENTIAL LAST YEAR

"While commercial customers obtain the largest share of these reductions, Hydro spokesmen pointed to the fact that last year's reductions went entirely to residential consumers."

The statement said the saving to residential consumers would result from the first 100 kilowatt hours of consumption being reduced from 3.5 cents to 3.2 cents.

Colonist Walkathon

More Than 300 Hit the Road

By JURGEN HESSE

A field of more than 300 contestants in the Colonist 50-mile Walkathon was scheduled to be sent off at 5 a.m. today with a bang from starter Archie McKinnon's gun.

The Colonist Sunday edition will carry a full account of the big event with stories and pictures, prize winners and details of the mass Walkathon.

From intersection McTavish and East Saanich Road South From 10 a.m. onward.
From Sayward Road at Highway 17 on to Fowler Road and Cordova Bay Road—From 11:30 a.m. onward.

Along Ash, Torquay, Bartie, Tyndall, Ferndale, Gordon Head Road, Arbutus, Telegraph Bay Road and Cadboro Bay Road—From 12 noon onward.

Along Cadboro Bay Road, Beach Drive to golf course—From 1 p.m. onward.

From golf course on Beach Drive along Fairfield Road, to Foul Bay Road, along Crescent Road and along the yellow-line route—From 2 p.m. onward.

Along Dallas, north on Oswego to Macdonald Park—About 2:15 p.m.

Victoria High School student Alan Vallant's announcement that he will win the Colonist Walkathon in under 10 hours still stands, but Vallant has been challenged by other contestants.

If Vallant's prediction—50 miles within 10 hours—becomes a reality, then it is possible several walkers will only have reached the halfway point outside the Experimental Farm when the winner hits the finishing line.

Weary walkers can drop out at any point along the route and have been asked to notify official cars.

As soon as a sizeable number of drop-outs has gathered at one of the checkpoints along the route, a Vancouver Island Coach Lines bus will be notified to pick them up.

If there are slow but determined walkers among the 322 entries, the last one may not finish until 1 a.m. Sunday, having walked at a steady 2 1/2 miles an hour.

Winners of cash and merchandise prizes in the overall or hidden time category will be asked to come to the Colonist board room Wednesday at 5:30 p.m. to receive their awards.

Hawks Might Tap Farms for Help

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago Black Hawks may call for player help from their farm clubs for Sunday's third Stanley Cup semi-final game against Detroit Red Wings here.

That was the word Friday from coach Rudy Pilous who says he was "a bit shocked" at news from the Hawks' sick bay in Chicago that indicated three regulars — left wingers Bobby Hull and Ron Murphy and defenseman Al MacNeil — may all be out.

Pilous, who left Chicago early Friday, a few hours after the Hawks whipped the Red Wings 5-2 to take a two-game lead in their best-of-seven series, said in a telephone interview from Erie, Ont. he "didn't know a thing" about MacNeil's injury, diagnosed as two broken ribs.

"We added: 'We might have to go to Buffalo for help but I still have Bob Turner and Reg Fleming for defence duty.'"

Pilous has used these utility men on forward lines since

Hawks opened the series with a 3-4 decision Tuesday night.

Hull suffered a fractured rim of an orbital bone adjacent to his nose and considerable damage to soft tissue in the nose.

Tonight's game between Toronto and Montreal will be televised on Channel 1 and 6 at 8 p.m. and broadcast on CBC (100) at 5:30.

Thursday night, his face was raked by the stick of Detroit's Bruce MacGregor after take by Hull literally sent the Red Wing youngster spinning.

MAY PLAY TUESDAY

Clinic physician Dr. Myron Tremblaine said it is doubtful Hull can play Sunday, even with a protecting face mask. He may see action in Tuesday's fourth game.

Murphy, who played last Tuesday night, missed Thursday night's game and may be out a week because of infection which developed on a cut ankle.

The way the Hawks have handled the Red Wings in the two games so far doesn't indicate that they need much help from the farm. They won both their games in easy fashion, particularly Thursday night.

WINGS HEALTHY

The Red Wings left Chicago Thursday and are staying at Toledo, Ohio. Coach Sid Abel reports they are healthy.

The Toronto Maple Leafs plan a disappearing act between the third and fourth games of their Stanley Cup semi-final against Montreal Canadiens.

Way of over-zealous fans in Montreal, where the teams play tonight's third game of the best-of-seven series, Toronto manager-coach Punch Imlach said he'll keep each of his city away from the game.

WON'T NAME THEM

"I don't know yet where I'm going," he said Friday before Leafs, leading the series 2-0, flew to Montreal. "I've got two places to go, but I'm not naming them."

"Frankly, I just don't want the players to be bothered. The visiting teams have a real easy time of it here compared to Montreal."

There was some speculation Leafs might return to Toronto to await the fourth game Tuesday night in Montreal, but this could not be confirmed. After Thursday night's second game, which Toronto won 3-2, Imlach said his between-games residence "might be Granby or Mont Tremblant or I don't know where."

Forward Johnny MacMillan, out of action for the last week and a half with an elbow injury, skated without equipment Friday but Imlach said he won't likely dress tonight.

Coach Toe Blake still maintains his Canadiens are a better team than Toronto.

"Everybody says they've got a much better team than we do," said Blake Friday.

"But I don't see it. When I take two sheets of paper, and write down all the players' names, I don't see how they're better than we are in any department — goaltending, defence or whatever."

Blake says the series is "far from over."

"Our spirit is good. If we'd played another bad game like Tuesday, we'd be in bad shape. But now we know we can stay with them. We outskated them in the last two periods Thursday, and we could have beat them if it wasn't for that lucky goal."

The "lucky" goal was Leafs' winner in the 3-2 game, a skunk-shot nudge by Leaf centre Dave Keon that beat Montreal goalie Jacques Plante.

Blake said, "I don't think so," when asked whether defenceman Tom Johnson is likely to return in the two games in Montreal. Johnson is recovering from a fractured cheek bone.

"I don't see any reason for it anyway," said Blake. "Those two young kids (brookies Terry Harper and Jacques Laperriere) are playing terrific. I'm going to keep them in their killing penalties."

Canadians' only injury worry is left winger Gilles Tremblay, who took a solid jolt in the mouth Thursday night.

But team physiotherapist Bill Head said Tremblay seems to have only stiff muscles in the jaw and cheeks and "must probably" will play tonight.

Second game will be played tonight.

Braves Lead Cage Series

PENITICTON

Victoria's Haida Braves beat Peniticton 70-61, here last night in the first game of their two-game total-point series for the B.C. juvenile boys' basketball championship.

Second game will be played tonight.

George Clark Wins at 75

George Clark, a spry 75, won the senior singles of the city table tennis championships last night, defeating defending champion Jim Davidson, 21-8, 13-21, 21-13.

Johnny Beofsch beat Brian Noble, 21-9, 21-18, 17-21, 21-13, for the men's title. Ron Gray took the junior crown with a 21-16, 16-21, 21-11 win over Dan Fitzgerald, and Nancy Craig defended her women's singles crown in a round-robin competition.

Three of the club's 11-14 age group skaters, who recently performed brilliantly to take a place on Canada's Uber Cup team, were stopped suddenly by Victoria's Alison Daysmith.

WINNING SHOT

Miss Daysmith fought out of difficulty time and again with a shot she later described as a "cross-court backhand drop" that is practised in British Columbia, but apparently unknown in Ontario. The 18-year-old Vancouver Island beauty won 11-6, 11-5.

In the other half of the draw Winnipeg's Anne McDiarmid

continued in her king-beating role by defeating third-seeded Eleanor O'Gorman of Winnipeg 3-1, 11-7, 13-10.

The matches thus set up a final today between Miss McDiarmid, an unranked 15-year-old, and Miss Daysmith, the seventh seed.

The rouscous Patterson opened his semi-final match poorly against John McAuley of Pegina, smashing into the net and missing sidelines, but recovered to win 15-10, 15-1. Patterson and Barlowen will meet today for the junior title.

The East, however, kept a life in the junior doubles as Miss Chittick and Sue Carr-Harris of Oakville, Ont. defeated top seeds Judy Humber and Miss Daysmith 15-13, 15-9. Entering the finals against them were Miss O'Gorman and Miss McDiarmid who defeated Diane Godfrey and Wendy Williams of Victoria 18-17, 15-3.

TWIN ACT

And in junior men's doubles, the second-seeded Toronto twins Gordon and Graham Grant edged out a 4-15, 15-2, 18-16 victory over Howie Meakin and Al Fraser of Vancouver to enter the finals.

They will play Patterson and Barlowen, who were 15-10, 15-10 semi-final winners over Regina's Geoff Holland and McAuley.

The world's two top-ranking badminton players scored decisive victories Friday night to set up a meeting for the men's open singles title.

MISTAKEN RARE

Erland Kops of Denmark, rarely making a mistake in his touch at the nets, whipped Thailand's Sangob Rattanasong 15-9, 15-4.

In the other semi-final match, second-ranking Channong Rattana - Saeng - Suang of Thailand made up points in his first game and led all the way in his second to defeat American champion Jim Poole 15-11, 15-12.

Kops, who won the Canadian open title in his last four of Canada two years ago meets Channong for the championship tonight.

DREW SPOTLIGHT

Poole and Channong drew the spotlight despite the presence of the world champion on the next court. The American from San Diego, Calif., outweighed his opponent 195 pounds to 123, but covered the floor as well, failing only when he was forced to leave the baselines.

In women's singles play, Marjorie Shield stood off an assault by Dorothy Tinline to qualify for a chance at her sixth Canadian title. She defeated her Toronto clubmate 11-0, 11-12.

The other half of the draw brought an easier 11-5, 11-5 victory for second-seeded Mrs. Joan Miller of Montreal over Toronto's Sharon Whittaker, formerly of Victoria.

Victoria Juniors Sparkle Enter Badminton Finals

By DENNIS ORCHARD

VANCOUVER (CP)—Eastern Canada lost all hope for a junior singles title in two startling upsets Friday at the Canadian badminton championships.

It was a field day for underdogs as both the junior men's and women's singles events went through semi-final matches.

Montreal's Yves Pare, seeded second behind Ed Patterson of Vancouver, was beaten badly in his semi-final match by Alex Barlowen of Victoria.

CONTROLS RAILED

The 18-year-old Barlowen, seeded third, held his service skillfully through both games and controlled most rallies on his way to an 11-6, 11-6 victory.

Beverly Chittick of Windsor, Ont., the second seed in junior women's singles who recently performed brilliantly to take a place on Canada's Uber Cup team, was stopped suddenly by Victoria's Alison Daysmith.

Campbell River Radio Station Object of Bid

OTTAWA (CP)—Bids to establish a new privately-owned radio station at Campbell River and a CBC television rebroadcasting station at Castlegar were among a number of British Columbia applications heard Friday by the Board of Broadcast Governors.

CFRP Radio Ltd., owners of radio station CFRC, Courtenay, sought permission to set up a 250-watt station operating on a frequency of 1,190 kilocycles.

William G. Browne, CFRP president, told the board's public hearing the station's present signal does not reach Campbell River, whose estimated 6,000 residents formed about one-third of the Courtenay station's market.

The proposed station would be prepared to carry the CBC's national radio service and would originate some of its programs. But it would take most of its programs from CFRP Courtenay, he said.

Pacific Logging Buys Into Firm

DUNCAN—Pacific Logging Company, a Canadian Pacific subsidiary, has acquired a minority interest in T. M. MacKenzie Logging Limited of Cowichan Lake, president William M. Sloan has announced.

He said MacKenzie Logging would sell its logs to existing mills in the Cowichan Lake area.

"We are pleased to have become associated with such a well-known and efficient logging firm with so many years' experience on Vancouver Island," Mr. Sloan said.

He said MacKenzie Logging would produce 25 million feet of timber this year in that area and logged areas will be replanted immediately after logging.

Island Candidates

Devaluation Upheld As Benefit to Canada

PORT ALBERNI—Alex Crouch, Progressive Conservative candidate in Comox-Alberni, contradicted a statement in a local weekly when he spoke at a meeting here Thursday night.

He took issue with the Alberni Valley Courier's report on the recent Davis Fulton meeting in which it was stated, "He (Mr. Fulton) refrained from bringing out any factors about the austerity program which combined with the dollar devaluation had hit the pockets of the taxpayers harder than anything else in recent years."

'NOT TRUE'

"This is not true," Mr. Crouch said. "Devaluation of the dollar has contributed to record growth of the economy, creating jobs and, therefore, putting more dollars into the pockets of Canadians."

"We have manufactured more and sold more than ever before in the history of Canada. The forest industry and also the fishing industries had their greatest year and the tourist industry reached an all-time high of $300,000,000."

"All Canadians felt the benefit of the dollar devaluation excepting those who had extended holidays in the U.S. where the Canadian dollar doesn't go so far," he said.

Mr. Crouch said, "In five years the Conservative government has turned the former Liberal government's recession of the mid-60s into Canada's greatest economic period."

"The people want the Conservatives to continue this government of progress."

NANAIMO—Pledges of constructive action "within the time" of a new Liberal government if elected were given by Douglas Greer, Liberal candidate for Nanaimo, Cowichan and The Islands in a full itinerary Friday.

Travelling by plane and boat, Mr. Greer addressed meetings on Mayne, North and South Pender and Galiano Islands.

Later he went to Victoria to attend the party rally for leader Lester Pearson.

NANAIMO—An attack on both Progressive Conservatives and Liberals as "political protectors of special interests" was made at Crofton by Colin Cameron, MP for Nanaimo in the last Parliament and NDP candidate in the April 8 election.

Mr. Cameron will be present at the four-party forum Saturday at Bowen Park, and at a dinner meeting later at Duncan.

LADYSMITH—Drivers of two cars, Daniel T. Bewick and Mrs. F. Campbell, both of Ladysmith, escaped injury following a two-car crash at the intersection of 4th Ave. and Bel Air St. Police estimated the damage at $1,300.

Loggers Charter Aircraft

VANCOUVER—The International Woodworkers of America (IWA) Friday announced plans for a daily chartered plane service for loggers who refuse to patronize the Vancouver-Port Hardy, B.C., service of strike-bound Pacific Western Airlines.

IWA regional president Jack Moore said that starting next Tuesday the union's regional council will operate a daily service between Vancouver and Sullivan Bay, 28 miles east of Port Hardy.

Moore said an 11-seat Malabar aircraft has been chartered from B.C. Airlines Limited for the shuttle service. He said the union took the action when it found some loggers, to avoid crossing flight attendants' picket lines at PWA, were paying up to $70 each for co-operatively chartered flights to their logging camps.

Crowds Throng Boat Show

NANAIMO—A record crowd attended the opening night Thursday of the Boat and Outdoor Recreation Show organized by the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 256, and held in the Exhibition Grounds.

Mayor Pete Maffeo congratulated the Legion for a show "equal to any put on in Vancouver."

Water recreation was the main theme of the exhibition, with boats of all sizes, materials and description, on display. Two unusual exhibits, an amphibious and an eight-foot watercraft, drew an interested crowd.

Gun and camping displays, caravans and equipment, showed the enthusiast how camping can be combined with comfort. The Devilfish Diving Club exhibition of items picked up during underwater expeditions—octopus, fish and crabs, and scuba equipment worn by members of the club, had spectators asking questions all the time.

Hospital Benefits From Mayo Will

DUNCAN—The hospital board at its last meeting learned the King's Daughters' Hospital received $22,217 from the Mayo estate and the money will be invested in Government of Canada bonds.

Mrs. Will Dobson, president of the hospital's Junior Auxiliary, will serve in the additional capacity of director of volunteer services, correlating all volunteer work at the hospital.

All volunteer workers at the hospital are now insured while on duty.

Snow Cuts Off Logging

COWICHAN VALLEY—Ailing the Rotary members for their hospitality and "for setting out the master plan for Bowen Park."

Joe Muir, custodian of the Bastion, was guest speaker, giving highlights of Nanaimo's development since 1833.

About 300 loggers were affected at Meade Creek, Gordon River, Shawigan division, Cayuse and Mayo. Operations at Hillcrest were not interrupted.

DUNCAN—Shawigan Beach Hotel proprietor Denis M. Hurley was elected new president of the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce at Thursday night's meeting, and Cliff Pascoe is 1963-64 vice-president.

The board of directors consists of: Norman Gourlay, Bob Howard, Jim Jardine, Gordon Sutherland, Bill Jaynes, Will Dobson, Al Vansacker, Herb Dorman, I. K. Barber, Bert Dodd and Ed Good, immediate past president. All were elected by acclamation and will be installed at the April 25 annual Chamber banquet at the Tzouhalem Hotel.

NANAIMO—Robison Service, Duncan, was fined $200 in Nanaimo police court Friday on conviction of operating an overloaded truck. This was the third such conviction.

The company's owner, J. Robison, testified that he had reduced the loads of chips and fuel carried from the Chemainus mill to Harmac from 11 units to six, thus losing money on his contract which he was unable to break. He requested leniency as he had reduced the loads after his previous convictions and found it difficult to judge exact loadings as moisture content of the chips varied from hour to hour.

NANAIMO—Rotary members and their invited old-time guests numbered nearly 200 at the Friday luncheon in the Malaspina. President Don Concliffe welcomed the guests saying this meeting has become a tradition.

All guests were introduced by their respective hosts, who outlined briefly the age, number of years spent in Nanaimo and profession of the old-timers. Joe Muir and Lou Lawrence reported they had lived in Nanaimo for 88 and 79 years.

Mayor Pete Maffeo, another old timer, spoke briefly, thanking the Rotary members for their hospitality and "for setting out the master plan for Bowen Park."

NANAIMO—Members of the Nanaimo and District Water Safety Association met Wednesday in the Royal Canadian Legion branch to discuss ways of raising $3,000 to finance beach patrols during the summer. Membership cards are on sale for 50 cents and a tag day will be held April 27. Donations already received include $10 from the Devilfish Club, $30 from the Orange Lily Lodge and $5 from Miriam Rebekah Lodge.

Departure Bay Recreation Commission will be organizing its own water safety patrols. Mike Mihalich of the St. John Ambulance Brigade offered to organize and instruct classes in artificial respiration and life-saving.

District representatives present included Ald. William McGregor, Nanaimo; R. Baughallan, Wellington; James Boserio, Harewood and I. J. Strong, Departure Bay.

Members of the new executive are Joe Carr, president; Colin Murchison, first vice-president; Pat Joy, treasurer; directors Frank Anzik, Terry Lam, Irene Boris, Ralph MacColl and Laura Green.

DUNCAN—This year's April cancer campaign manager Gen. C. A. P. Murison has told the organizing committee he hopes the campaign will be an "unqualified success."

Chant Pledges

Old Courthouse
Due Second Look

The provincial government has given no indication when it would reach a decision on disposal of the old courthouse in Bastion Square, a city hall spokesman said yesterday.

Works Minister W. N. Chant, however, has given his assurance that the government will take "a second look" at the city's proposal for an exchange of properties.

Mayor R. B. Wilson met the provincial works minister to discuss the situation yesterday, at Mr. Chant's request. Nothing definite came of the meeting but civic representatives were left with the impression that settlement wouldn't be negotiated "overnight."

The mayor said following the meeting both parties felt it would be to the benefit of both Victoria and the government if the now-idle courthouse was put to use.

MAJOR ROLE
"We felt that the courthouse, used to house something in the nature of the B.C. Maritime Museum or a centre of the arts, could play a major role in the rehabilitation of the whole of Bastion Square," Mayor Wilson said.

He added that the city regards this possibility as "highly desirable."

Some time ago Mr. Chant said the government would be willing to negotiate an exchange of the courthouse for city-owned property within the boundaries of the proposed government precinct in James Bay.

MATTER LAPSED
When it was disclosed that the city only owned a handful of vacant lots in the designated area the matter to all outward appearances lapsed until Mr. Chant asked for a meeting with Mayor Wilson a week or so ago.

EXTENT NOT KNOWN
The city has properties which it believes the government would consider taking in return for the courthouse, but so far the location and extent of the properties under consideration hasn't been made public.

The city recently purchased the former Duncan storage building adjoining the old courthouse for $45,000. This property is regarded as the key to future re-development of Bastion Square and the surrounding Old Lower Town area.

At least that's what Mrs. Ann Ray of Langford did last night while husband Frank stayed home with his ticket on Castle Perilous, a long shot in the Grand National steeplechase at Aintree today. He said he was still not sure whether the horse would start. But he wins $1,200 just for drawing a horse.

Two Victoria residents known only by pseudonyms, and one Duncan resident, also hold tickets. Thomas of Victoria holds ticket KPB 10142 on Ayala; Healey, Victoria, owns KPB 11690 on Jonjo, and Too Short, Adam Erie, Duncan, JHP 23329 on Dailiator.

Pilotage Inquiry

The royal commission on pilotage will arrive Sunday morning, for the start of a three-day visit to Victoria, Nanaimo and Port Alberni.

Crown Land Leased
To Fish, Game Group

PORT ALBERNI — One hundred thirty-four acres of wooded crown land on Stamp River have been turned over on a 10-year lease to Alberni District Fish and Game Association with the stipulation that the area will be made available for use by the public.

A spokesman for the association said that all outdoor groups of the district are invited to help with the development of the area and to make use of the choice property.

TWO BUNKHOUSES
MacMillan, Blodel & Powell River Ltd. have donated two large bunkhouses which are to be moved from their location on Stamp Ave.

Volunteer workers have started already to dismantle the buildings for removal.

Old growth timber covers much of the property which has 3,000 feet of river frontage. The area is adjacent to the local Finnish group's steam bath and clubhouse above the site of Beaver Creek district's water system pump house, about five miles north of Alberni.

The game club spokesman said that it is hoped archers,

The RCMP have asked for help in the listing of owners of rifles of the same make and model as the murder weapon which was used in the double slaying of two Nanaimo teenagers last October.

The .22-calibre Winchester Model 63 rifle was found in three feet of water at Long Lake, a short distance north of Nanaimo.

BALLISTIC PROOF

Ballistics tests proved that this is the same weapon that was used to kill practical nurse Diane Phipps and her boy friend Leslie Dixon, both 19, the night of Oct. 17.

A spokesman said yesterday that the RCMP already has an extensive list of owners of this type of rifle and each is being checked.

HELP PROGRAM

"We would like all owners of this Model 63 Winchester to come forward and declare them," he said. "This will help in our elimination program."

The rifles should be declared at the nearest RCMP detachment, he said.

Social Drinker
Main Threat

NANAIMO — The social drinker causes more accidents than the drunk and impaired, George Lindsay, provincial superintendent of motor vehicles, said here.

Mr. Lindsay spoke, and showed graphic films, to a packed audience in the Royal Canadian Legion auditorium.

"The drunk and the impaired often pull over and sleep it off. The social drinker feels the lift from two or three drinks."

"Most vehicular accidents occur from speed, and irresponsibility, a form of discourtesy and criminal negligence."

STIFF PENALTIES

"A total of 8,000 persons were injured and 363 died in this province on the highways in 1962," he said. "Unless there is a public demand for stiffer penalties, we will not get them and the toll will not be cut."

All for Science

Eagle Nest Robbed

By ALEC MERRIMAN
Colonist Outdoors Editor

We helped rob a bald eagle nest Sunday but it was in the interest of science and the safari had the full approval of wildlife authorities.

Within 25 minutes after tree climbing arborist Michael Gye had reached the six-foot-across and five-foot-deep eagle nest 100 feet up in the fir treetop, the three eggs found in the nest were safely tucked away in an incubator at the home of youthful ecologist David Hancock.

Rare Occasion

If the eggs hatch as expected it will be one of the few times that bald eagle eggs have been taken from a nest and hatched artificially.

Mr. Hancock has undertaken the study of the bald eagle population as a project for his Victoria University ecology 320 course, under Dr. Edwin Hagmiller.

Information he gains from his studies will be made available to wildlife authorities and may help discover why the bald eagle population appears on an alarming decrease all over North America.

Special Counts

Mr. Hancock, 24, is a qualified float plane pilot and uses an aircraft to help him in his bird studies, both on the eagle survey and special waterfowl population counts he takes in conjunction with provincial fish and game branch studies.

Our Sunday adventure started at Canoe Cove where we boarded a yacht in company with three climbers—Michael Gye and Ted Tuttle, three . . . and from there it looked just about impossible to climb that tree and get Rick Payne, both 17, and in the eggs.

Three eggs in eagles' nest may make ecological history. They have been placed in an incubator and may become the first eggs to be taken from an eagle nest and hatched artificially.

Waiting Period

Now it is a matter of waiting to see if the eggs hatch. Incubation period is normally 35 days, but there is no telling how long the eagle had been sitting on the nest.

Mr. Hancock plans to study and record the growth, development and behavior of the young eagles. Already he is studying live eagles he keeps at the Durran Road zoo.

The young stay in the nests from 2 1/2 to three months and it is four years before they attain adult plumage. Eagles do live to be 50 years old, but nine or 10 years is a more realistic life span.

Six feet across and five feet deep this bald eagle nest was big enough to hold Michael Gye. He climbed 100 feet up giant fir to get eggs from nest to further scientific studies of Victoria University student David Hancock, who hopes to hatch them in incubator.

Plane Crash Fatal

ALBERNI—A Vancouver man presumably died Thursday in the spiralling crash of his light plane into an arm of Sproat Lake, about 15 miles from here.

Wreckage of a small plane, found Friday, has been identified as that of a Mooney aircraft which, piloted by Richard Hansen, 30, Vancouver, took off from the mainland city Thursday afternoon.

SPOTTED FROM AIR

The debris was first spotted by an RCAF Search and Rescue helicopter, and positive identification made by a ground party guided to the location by the copter.

Mr. Hansen, an electrical contractor, took off Thursday at 2:45 p.m. on a flight to Bella Coola and Prince Rupert. He was reported as missing, and is believed to have been driven off course by Thursday's bad weather in the area.

SPIRALLING DOWN

People living near Sproat Lake reported Thursday seeing a plane spiralling down and vanishing, its motor screaming, behind a mountain at about 4 p.m.

Search by air and land that day failed to bring results, and was resumed Friday, still in bad weather with intermittent snow.

Casket Firm Razed

A raging blaze all but destroyed an old Sidney land-mark late last night.

Hungry flames licked through the old Sidney theatre, now converted to the Van-Ile Casket Co., 9781 Fourth Street. Sidney volunteer fire chief G. A. Gardner said damage would run to "many thousands of dollars" but declined to give an official estimate until inventory could be taken.

IN BUILDING

Material for nearly 1,000 caskets was destroyed by the searing heat and flames. A substantial number of completed caskets was reduced to ashes in the blaze which was kept in the building by firemen's efforts.

IN EAST END

The fire appeared to have broken out in the east end of the building, then spread to the ceiling. Some flames licked through onto the roof but were quickly snuffed out.

The property was believed to be partly insured.

Mac's Car Buffeted

(CP from Reuters-AP)

BROMLEY, England—Slogans shouting anti-nuclear demonstrators Friday night rocked and buffeted the car containing Prime Minister Macmillan and his wife after he defended Britain's nuclear deterrent in a speech here.

Macmillan told a Conservative party rally in this southern English town it would be wrong for Britain or Europe to rely solely on the U.S. nuclear deterrent. Extra police were rushed to the scene when 150 anti-bomb supporters gathered outside the hall, waiting for the prime minister to leave.

They rocked and buffeted Macmillan's car for several minutes until police cleared a path for it.

Warheads Make Canada Decoy

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Friday night the Liberal party proposed policy of arming Canada's Bomarc missiles with nuclear warheads will make Canada a decoy for attack.

He told a boisterous meeting at Kingston Arena that United States Defence Secretary McNamara had dropped the bottom out of the Liberal election campaign.

"The Pearson policy is to make Canada a decoy for the intercontinental missiles," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

BOTTOM FELL OUT

"The whole bottom fell out of the Liberal program today with the McNamara revelation."

The prime minister's meeting was a stormy one when about 500 Queen's University students congregated in the

Bomarc Worth It Says McNamara

(From CP)

WASHINGTON—Views of U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara on the efficiency of the Bomarc anti-aircraft weapon burst like a bombshell on the Canadian election scene Friday.

The statements were contained in a transcript of testimony given earlier by McNamara to a closed-door congressional investigating group.

He said one of the uses of the Bomarc is to draw enemy ballistic missile fire in the event of war.

ONLY $20,000,000

He said he would remove the Bomarc altogether but for the fact the annual maintenance costs are no more than $20,000,000 and "I think we are getting our money's worth."

At the very least, he said, the Bomarc would cause the Soviets to target missiles against them and thereby increase their missile requirements or draw missiles onto those Bomarc targets that would otherwise be available for other targets.

TWO AREAS

He referred to the lack of adequate dispersal as one problem affecting U.S. Bomarc. These squadrons are located in the northeastern and central parts of the country.

Poppies Free!

Hard on the heels of the first free seed offer from M. V. Chesnut, garden columnist of The Daily Colonist, a second offer begins in Sunday's edition.

The recent first offer was a new marigold, Pilsner Hybrid; this one is an even newer flower, a compact, colorful California puppy called Mission Bell.

Hecklers Laid Low

16,000 Hear Douglas

By BEN WARD

TORONTO (CP)—New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas drew nearly 16,000 persons into Maple Leaf Gardens Friday night and told them it's time Canada elected a government "which knows where it is going and how it is going to get there."

Obviously buoyed by the huge and enthusiastic crowd, the NDP leader cut loose with a scathing attack on the Liberal election themes, derided the Diefenbaker government "for what he called procrastination and indecision, and laid low a scattering of hecklers."

CLOSE DOORS

A Gardens spokesman said turnstile attendants clocked 15,842 admissions on their automatic counters. Firemen finally ordered the doors closed because of fire regulations which allowed for 1,250 extra chairs on the board-covered ice surface of the big hockey rink.

Mr. Douglas had one almost serious brush with a young heckler who leaped onto the platform just after Mr. Douglas had been introduced and was waiting for the applause to subside.

The well-dressed young man

pushed Mr. Douglas aside, leaned into the battery of microphones and shouted, "Not Douglas, but Pearson!"

Startled organizers tried to push the man back. When he resisted, four of them seized him and hustled him off the stage and out of the building where he disappeared before reporters could reach him.

BEST FRIENDS

At another point, when the New Democratic chief was referring to American control of the Canadian economy, a loud voice barked: "Stop crying. The Americans are our best friends."

"Of course they're our best friends," Mr. Douglas shot back.

Liberals 'Punctured'

TORONTO (CP)—T. C. Douglas said Friday that statements by United States Defence Secretary McNamara on the usefulness of the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile "completely punctures" Liberal leader Pearson's argument that Canada must accept nuclear warheads for its two Bomarc bases.

Strike Up The Ban

Liberal leader Lester Pearson was expressive last night as he and Mrs. Pearson arrived at the Royal Theatre to find they had to cross a "Ban the Bomb" picket line of some 30 people carrying signs and nuclear disarmament emblems. An aide helped clear a path for them into the theatre. (Bud Kinsman.)

$4,000 in Payroll Cheques 'Sent to Gagliardi's Home'

Some $4,000 worth of payroll cheques for two men employed by a Trans-Canada Highway contractor were sent to Highway Minister Gagliardi's Kamloops home, the legislative roads probe was told yesterday.

The testimony came from Fred S. Bell, accountant for a group of companies involved in highway Project 819.

He said orders to put the two men on the payroll came from Burton Lymburner, president of L & M Logging Ltd., the prime contractor.

But he testified he never saw the men at work on the 12-mile highway project.

Mr. Lymburner was described earlier by star witness Dick Holzworth as a man paid

Project 1023 Named As 'Get Well Job'

A controversial highway project alleged to have been awarded to a firm as a "get well job" to cover previous losses was identified in a Colonist news story Friday as Project 819. The story stated highway department comptroller A. E. Rhodes had testified Project 819 cost double the estimate. What he said was that Project 1023 cost double the estimate.

$1,000 a month "for going to Gagliardi and keeping the door greased."

Mr. Bell told the afternoon session of the probe Mr. Lym-

By TED SHACKLEFORD

The nuclear issue took the spotlight last night as Liberal leader Lester Pearson spoke to an overflow meeting of more than 2,200 people in two Victoria theatres.

"Having spent $700,000,000 of your money and my money on the purchase of this equipment, the prime minister says the Bomarc missile which he acquired is no good. How absurd can you get?" he asked. "If he feels this way let him scrap them."

TO TWO CROWDS

Mr. Pearson was speaking to 1,450 people in the Royal Theatre with his speech piped in to another 750 in the Plaza Theatre.

Outside the Royal Theatre about 30 men and women picketed with signs against Canada accepting nuclear arms. Mr. and Mrs. Pearson walked through the pickets to enter the theatre.

Moderate heckling was ignored by Mr. Pearson as he spoke. When a heckler interrupted Mr. Pearson raised his voice and drowned out the interruption.

NO QUESTION PERIOD

No question period was allowed after Mr. Pearson had finished his speech. He left the Royal immediately and spoke briefly to the audience in the Plaza Theatre before returning to the Empress Hotel.

"He (Diefenbaker) wiped aside our objections in the House of Commons and boasted he was going to scrap the Avro Arrow and replace it with the Bomarc."

"When it came time for the government to follow through on its commitments last autumn—three years after the original

'John's Rug Not Ours'

Liberal leader Lester Pearson laughed yesterday at Prime Minister Diefenbaker's claim that a high United States official had "pulled the rug" from under Mr. Pearson's stand on nuclear arms for Canada.

"It's Mr. Diefenbaker's rug, not ours," he said when he arrived at Patricia Bay airport at 4:30 p.m. yesterday.

Hydro Rates Chopped

Reductions in electric (and or the mainland, gas) rates to save customers just under $3,700,000 a year were announced today by Dr. G. M. Shrum and Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, co-chairmen of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

Commercial users of electricity will benefit most by the new reduction, the hydro statement said, with an annual saving of $2,850,000.

Residential electric customers will get a saving of $1,500,000.

ANNIVERSARY

Announcement of details of the lower rates, the statement said, followed Premier Bennett's "recent statement that reductions would be introduced on the first anniversary of the merger of the former B.C. Electric and B.C. Power Commission."

The new rates will be effective on the first full month billing after April 1.

The statement went on: "The co-chairmen said the new reduction, combined with the $3,500,000 reduction announced in March last year, would pass on to Hydro customers $11,200,000 and would bolster provincial economy by this added amount of consumer spending in British Columbia."

RESIDENTIAL LAST YEAR

"While commercial customers obtain the largest share of these reductions, Hydro spokesmen pointed to the fact that last year's reductions went entirely to residential consumers."

The statement said the saving to residential consumers would result from the first 100 kilowatt hours of consumption being reduced from 3.5 cents to 3.2 cents.

Colonist Walkathon

More Than 300 Hit the Road

By JURGEN HESSE

A field of more than 300 contestants in the Colonist 50-mile Walkathon was scheduled to be sent off at 5 a.m. today with a bang from start-up Archie McKinnon's gun.

The Colonist Sunday edition will carry a full account of the big event with stories and pictures, prize winners and details of the mass Walkathon.

Residents along the route may look for the fastest walkers around these times:

From intersection McTavish and East Saanich Road South From 10 a.m. onward.

Along Ash: Torquay, Barrie, Tyndall, Ferndale, Gordon Head Road, Arbutus, Telegraph Bay Road and Cadboro Bay Road—From 12 noon onward.

Along Cadboro Bay Road, Beach Drive to golf course—From 1 p.m. onward.

From golf course on Beach Drive along Fairfield Road, to Foul Bay Road, along Crescent Road and along the yellow-line route—From 2 p.m. onward.

Along Dallas, north on Oswego to Macdonald Park—About 2:15 p.m.

Victoria High School student Alan Vallant's announcement that he will win the Colonist Walkathon in under 10 hours still stands, but Vallant has been challenged by other contestants.

If Vallant's prediction—30 miles within 10 hours—becomes a reality, then it is possible several walkers will only have reached the halfway point outside the Experimental Farm when the winner hits the finishing line.

Weary walkers can drop out at any point along the route and have been asked to notify official cars.

As soon as a sizeable number of drop-outs has gathered at one of the checkpoints along the route, a Vancouver Island Coach Lines bus will be notified to pick them up.

If there are slow but determined walkers among the 332 entries, the last one may not finish until 1 a.m. Sunday, having walked at a steady 2½ miles an hour.

Winners of cash and merchandise prizes in the overall or hidden time category will be asked to come to the Colonist board room Wednesday at 5:30 p.m. to receive their awards.
